Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Statutory citation: IDEA Part B Sec. 619(c)

In general, funds are distributed to eligible entities through a formula based on general population and poverty. Under the formula, each State is first allocated an amount equal to its fiscal year 1997 allocation. For any year in which the appropriation is greater than the prior year level, 85 percent of the funds above the fiscal year 1997 level are distributed based on each State's relative percentage of the total number of children aged 3 through 5 in the general population. The other 15 percent is distributed based on the relative percentage of children aged 3 through 5 in each State who are living in poverty.

The statute also includes several maximum and minimum allocation requirements when the amount available for distribution to States increases. If the amount available for allocation to States remains the same from one year to the next, States receive the same level of funding as in the prior year. If the amount available for allocation to States decreases from the prior year, any amount available for allocation to States above the 1997 level is allocated based on the relative increases in funding that the States received between 1997 and the prior year. If there is a decrease below the amount allocated for 1997, each State's allocation is ratably reduced from the 1997 level.

This program has no matching requirements. No match requirement. However, there are non-supplanting and excess cost requirements.

84.268 FEDERAL DIRECT STUDENT LOANS

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Office of Federal Student Aid, Department of Education

AUTHORIZATION:

Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended, Title IV, Part D.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide loan capital directly from the Federal government to vocational, undergraduate, and graduate postsecondary school students and their parents.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Loans

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

To help defray costs of education at a participating institutions. Repayment on Federal Stafford loans begins six months after the student ceases to carry at least one-half the normal full-time academic workload. Repayment of principal and interest on PLUS loans generally begins within 60 days of disbursement of the last installment; repayment of a Consolidation loan begins within 60 days after the proceeds of the loan have been used to discharge the liability of the borrower on the loans selected for consolidation. Deferments and forbearance of payment may be granted for certain authorized periods.

Applicant Eligibility:

The applicant must be a U.S. citizen, national, or person in the United States for other than a temporary purpose. A student borrower must be enrolled or accepted for enrollment in a degree or certificate program on at least a half-time basis as an undergraduate, graduate, or professional student at a participating postsecondary institution. An otherwise eligible student is eligible for loans during a single twelve-month period in which the student is enrolled in a non-degree/non-certificate course of study that the institution has determined is necessary in order for the student to enroll in a program leading to a degree or certificate. Under the Direct PLUS program, parents may borrow for dependent students. Also, graduate and professional students are eligible to borrow PLUS Loans. Direct Unsubsidized and PLUS loans are non-need based programs. A financial needs test based on family income is required for an undergraduate student to receive a Direct Subsidized loan. A student that is presently enrolled at a participating institution must be maintaining satisfactory academic progress in the course of study that they are pursuing. The borrower may not owe a refund on any Title IV grant or be in default on any Title IV loan received for attendance at any institution. The borrower must also file a Statement of Registration compliance (Selective Service).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Vocational, undergraduate, and graduate postsecondary school students and their parents.

Credentials/Documentation:

The borrower will need certification of eligibility from the institution and may be required to supply documentation to verify the accuracy of data used in the Direct Subsidized loan need analysis. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards. Applications for the Direct Subsidized and Unsubsidized loans are obtained from the institution. Direct consolidation loan applications are obtained from the Department of Education. To obtain a Direct Subsidized or Unsubsidized loan, a student shall complete and submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). All applications (with the exception of PLUS) for Direct Loans are processed by the Central Processor System (CPS) in the initial step to determine a student's Title IV eligibility. Institutions will receive official output from the CPS, and then will be able to assemble a financial aid award package. An institution participating in the Direct Loan program may award Direct Loans as part of the financial aid package. If a Direct Loan is not included in the aid package, a student may contact the institution to request loan information.

Award Procedure:

Institutions participate in the Direct Loan program either by originating loans or by using an alternative originator to originate loans. The institution must certify the borrower's eligibility to receive the funds. To obtain a Direct PLUS Loan, the parent completes an application and authorizes a credit check. If the parent does not have an adverse credit history the loan may be disbursed. Institutions may disburse funds by crediting them directly to the student's account at the institution, issuing a check or cash, or by initiating an electronic fund transfer.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Not Applicable.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Not Applicable.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula.

This program has no matching requirements.

This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Applicants may apply for a loan for any year of attendance at a postsecondary institution. Starting July 1, 2013, the interest rate on new Stafford Loans is fixed at a rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 2.05 percent (capped at 8.25 percent); new Unsubsidized Stafford loans have a fixed interest rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 3.6 percent (capped at 9.5 percent); and Direct PLUS loans have a fixed interest rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 4.6 percent (capped at 10.5 percent). There are four repayment plans that are available for Direct Loan borrowers: (1) A standard repayment plan with a fixed monthly payment amount over a period of up to 10 years; (2) an extended repayment plan with a fixed monthly payment amount paid over a period of 12 to 30 years, depending on the amount owed; (3) a graduated repayment plan with a monthly payment that will increase generally every 2 years. The repayment period varies from 12 to 30 years, depending on the amount owed; and (4) except for Direct PLUS Loan borrowers, an income contingent repayment (ICR) plan with a monthly payment that is adjusted annually based on the income of the borrower and paid over an extended period of time not to exceed 25 years. Any unpaid balance remaining after 25 years in the ICR plan is forgiven by the Secretary of Education. However, under current IRS rules, the amount written off is considered taxable income to the borrower in the year it is written off. In 2007, a new income-based repayment plan was created for those borrowers meeting a standard of "partial financial hardship" based on their annual repayment amount in relation to their adjusted gross income. Generally a borrower would not have to repay on a monthly basis more than 15 percent of their discretionary income, and any outstanding balance would be forgiven after 25 years of repayment. For new borrowers on or after July 1, 2014, these limits have been lowered to 10 percent of discretionary income and forgiveness after 20 years. Additionally, as of December 21, 2012, the Pay As You Earn plan, an income-sensitive repayment plan, is an option for eligible borrowers: those who meet the partial financial hardship standard, were a new borrower as of October 1, 2007, and who received a Direct Loan disbursement on or after October 1, 2011. Borrowers in this plan have to repay on a monthly basis no more than 10 percent of their discretionary income, and receive forgiveness on their remaining loan balances after 20 years of repayment. Direct Loan borrowers who work in public service are eligible for forgiveness during a 10-year period while they are repaying their loans. If these borrowers, during repayment, have an outstanding loan balance after 10 years of working in public service, the Federal Government will forgive the remaining balance on behalf of the borrower. Public service may include a variety of public disciplines such as education, health, law, military service and public safety. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Electronic transfer.

84.358 RURAL EDUCATIONFEDERAL AGENCY:

Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, Department of Education

AUTHORIZATION:

Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), as amended, Title VI, Part B.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide financial assistance to rural districts to carry out activities to help improve the quality of teaching and learning in their schools.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The program has two components with similar allowable uses of funds. Grantees under the Small, Rural School Achievement (SRSA) program component may use program funds to carry out activities authorized under: ESEA Title I-Part A (Grants to LEAs); Title II- Part A (Improving Teacher Quality State Grants); Title II-Part D (Educational Technology State Grants); Title III (Language Instruction for Limited English Proficient and Immigrant Students); Title IV-Part A (Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities State Grants); Title IV-Part B (21st Century Community Learning Centers); and Title V-Part A (State Grants for Innovative Programs). Grantees under the Rural and Low-Income School (RLIS) program component may use program funds for: teacher recruitment and retention; teacher professional development; educational technology; parental involvement activities; activities authorized under ESEA Title IV-Part A (Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities); activities authorized under ESEA Title I-Part A (Grants to LEAs); and activities authorized under ESEA Title III (Language Instruction for Limited English Proficient and Immigrant Students). This program is subject to non-supplanting requirements and must use a restricted indirect cost rate that is referenced under 34 CFR 75.564-76.569. For assistance call the Office of the Chief Financial Officer/Indirect Cost Group on (202) 708-7770.

Applicant Eligibility:

For SRSA, eligible recipients are local educational agencies (LEAs) in which (1) the total number of students in average daily attendance at all of the schools served by the LEA is less than 600 or where each school in the LEA is located in a county with a total population density of less than 10 persons per square mile; and (2) all of the schools served by the LEA are designated as rural by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) using the NCES school locale methodology in place at the time of enactment of the No Child Left Behind Act or the LEA is located in an area of the State defined as rural by a State governmental agency. For RLIS, eligible recipients are State educational agencies (SEAs). SEAs then must distribute funds to local educational agencies (LEAs) on a formula or competitive basis. An LEA is eligible to receive a grant under RLIS only if (1) it is not eligible for funds under SRSA; (2) at least 20 percent of the school children ages 5-17 in the LEA come from families with incomes below the poverty line; and (3) all of the schools served by the LEA are designated with a school locale code of 6, 7, or 8 under the NCES school locale methodology in place at the time of NCLB's enactment. If an SEA chooses not to participate in the program, the Secretary uses the State's allocation to make direct grants to eligible LEAs in the State.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Elementary and secondary schools, students, and teachers in rural schools.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

LEAs annually submit applications to the Department of Education. For SRSA, however, the Department considers the application requirement to be met if the LEA submitted an application in any prior year. Application forms and instructions are available from the headquarters office. For RLIS, an SEA must submit an application that includes specific, measurable goals and objectives for the activities to be carried out through the grant. If an SEA does not participate in the program, eligible LEAs in the State may submit an application directly to the Department.

Award Procedure:

For SRSA, awards are issued annually directly to eligible LEAs on a formula basis. Awards are made to all that apply and meet the applicable requirements of the Act. Contact the program office for more information. For RLIS, awards are issued annually to SEAs, which make subgrants to LEAs. Awards are made to all SEAs that have RLIS-eligible LEAs and apply and meet the applicable requirements of the Act. SEAs then award subgrants to eligible LEAs in the State either competitively or by formula.

OBJECTIVES:

To support competitive subgrants to local educational agencies (LEAs) that demonstrate the greatest need for the funds and the strongest commitment to use the funds to provide adequate resources to raise substantially the achievement of students in their lowest-performing schools. In general, State educational agencies (SEAs) must give priority for subgrants to LEAs with Title I-eligible schools ranked in the bottom five percent of such schools, based on student achievement and lack of progress in improving student achievement, as well as secondary schools with a graduation rate below 60 percent over a number of years. An SEA may retain up to 5 percent of the grant amount received for administration, evaluation, and technical assistance expenses. OBJECTIVES:

The Office for Civil Rights (OCR) in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) promotes and ensures that people have equal access to and the opportunity to participate in and receive services from all HHS-funded programs without facing unlawful discrimination, and that the privacy of their health information is protected. OCR protects the civil rights of all individuals who are subjected to discrimination in health and human services programs, and protects the health information privacy rights of consumers, and ensures that electronic protected health information is safeguarded against unauthorized use of disclosure through investigations, voluntary dispute resolution, enforcement, technical assistance, policy development and information services.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

ADVISORY SERVICES AND COUNSELING; INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Office for Civil Rights (OCR) in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is responsible for promoting and ensuring that people have equal access to and the opportunity to participate in and receive services from all HHS-funded programs without facing unlawful discrimination, that the privacy of their health information is protected, and that electronic protected health information is safeguarded against unauthorized use or disclosure. These HHS funded programs are provided through state agencies, nursing homes, skilled nursing facilities, medical laboratories, hospitals, day care centers, social service agencies and other providers. Any person who believes that an individual has been discriminated against in the provision of these services because of race, color, national origin, disability, age, sex or religion, may file a complaint with OCR. An individual who believes that discrimination on the basis of disability has occurred in a health or social services program of a state or local government entity may file a complaint with OCR under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, regardless of whether the entity receives Federal funds. Individuals may also file complaints of denials of health care for reasons other than the need and availability of services, by recipients of Hill-Burton grants and loans. In addition, a person may file a complaint under the Multiethnic Placement Act of 1994, as amended by Section 1808 of the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996, alleging that an adoption or foster care agency or entity funded by HHS discriminatorily relied on a parents or child's race, color, or national origin in making a placement decision. OCR will investigate complaints and take steps to ensure compliance with applicable civil rights laws.

OCR also enforces the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) Privacy Rule and Security Rule as well as the HITECH Breach Notification Rule and the confidentiality provisions of the Patient Safety and Quality Improvement Act (PSQIA) of 2005. OCR's activities under the Privacy, Security and Breach Notification Rules include enforcement actions, including conducting investigations, taking compliance actions, and making penalty determinations, and conducting public education, technical assistance and other outreach activities: to health care providers, health care clearinghouses, health plans, and business associates of covered entities to ensure that they understand their responsibilities under the Rules; to other entities that may be impacted by the Rules, including Federal, State and local government agencies, and researchers; and to consumers, to inform them of their rights under the Privacy Rule. Anyone who believes that a person, agency or organization covered under the HIPAA Privacy and Security Rules ("a covered entity") has violated the Privacy and/or Security Rules may file a complaint with OCR. In addition, the Breach Notification Rule requires HIPAA covered entities to promptly notify affected individuals of a breach, as well as the HHS Secretary and the media in cases where a breach affects more than 500 individuals; OCR is required to publish a list of entities that incur large breaches. Where a breach of unsecured protected health information occurs at or by a business associate, the business associate must notify the covered entity following the discovery of the breach.

Additionally, the HITECH Act now makes business associates accountable for protecting the privacy and security of protected health information and directly liable for criminal and civil penalties for violations of HIPAA and Security Rules.

OCR's activities under PSQIA include administering an enforcement program regarding the confidentiality protections, including conducting investigations, taking compliance actions, making penalty determinations, and interpreting standards for confidentiality protections and the enforcement program for guidance and technical assistance to Patient Safety Organizations (PSOs), providers and public information.

Applicant Eligibility:

Anyone who believes he or she has been discriminated against in the manner outlined, seeks information concerning civil rights, and recipients of Federal financial assistance who desire technical assistance and information for the purpose of assuring their compliance with nondiscrimination laws. Regarding the HIPAA Privacy and Security Rules, anyone who believes that the Privacy and/or Security Rules have been violated in the manner outlined or who seeks information about these Rules; consumers that need to know their rights under the Privacy Rule; and entities that need technical assistance and information for the purpose of assuring compliance with the Privacy and Security Rules.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Individuals subject to discrimination and recipients who require technical assistance and information. Regarding the HIPAA Privacy Rule, individuals subject to violation of their health information privacy, covered entities, and others needing or seeking technical assistance and information concerning the Rule.

Award Procedure:

None.

Complaints under the Privacy and/or Security Rules must be filed within 180 days of the date when the complainant knew, or should have known, that the act or omission complained of occurred, unless the time limit is waived for good cause. Complaint processing time varies considerably based on the type of complaint, the complexity of the issues, and current OCR caseload.

Appeals:

Individuals can appeal a civil rights discrimination complaint determination in some instances by submitting, in writing, a request for reconsideration to the Director, Office for Civil Rights. OCR imposes civil money penalties (CMPs) on covered entities and their business associates found to be in violation of the HIPAA Privacy, Security and/or Breach Notification Rules. If CMPs are imposed, the covered entity, or any applicable business associates, may request a hearing in which an HHS administrative law judge (ALJ) decides if the CMPs are supported by the evidence in the case. OCR is required to present the evidence to support the imposition of CMPs to the ALJ. The covered entity and/or business associate(s) may also then appeal the ALJ's decision to the HHS

Departmental Appeals Board (DAB) and ultimately to the U.S. Courts of Appeal.

93.007 PUBLIC AWARENESS CAMPAIGNS ON EMBRYO ADOPTION

Embryo Donation/Adoption

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Office of the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized by Section 1704 of the Public Health Service Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 300u-3, , 42 U.S.C 300u-3.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the program is to increase public awareness of embryo adoption as a method of family building and to provide services to infertile individuals so as to facilitate their use of embryo donation/adoption.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The increasing success of assisted reproductive technologies (ART) has resulted in a situation in which an infertile couple typically creates several embryos through in-vitro fertilization (IVF). During IVF treatments, couples may produce many embryos in an attempt to become pregnant with several being cryopreserved (frozen) for future use. If a couple becomes pregnant without using all of the stored embryos, they may choose to release the remaining unused embryos for donation and adoption allowing other infertile couples the experience of pregnancy and birth. Embryo donation and/or adoption is a relatively new process in which individuals who have extra frozen embryos agree to release the embryos for transfer to the uterus of another woman, either known or anonymous to the donor(s) for the purpose of the recipient(s) attempting to bear a child and be that child's parent. Individuals may not apply for this assistance.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible applicants include public agencies, nonprofit organizations, and for-profit organizations. Eligibility to compete for this announcement is limited to particular applicant organizations. Only agencies and organizations, not individuals, are eligible to apply. One agency must be identified as the applicant organization and will have legal responsibility for the project. Additional agencies and organizations can be included as co-participants, subgrantees, subcontractors, or collaborators if they will assist in providing expertise and in helping to meet the needs of the recipients. Faith-based and community-based organizations meeting the eligibility requirements may apply, or they may be included as co-participants, subgrantees, subcontractors, or collaborators if they will assist in providing expertise and in helping to meet the needs of recipients. Eligibility is limited to organizations that can demonstrate previous experience with embryo adoption and are knowledgeable in all elements of the process of embryo adoption.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The beneficiary populations for this program are potential donors and/or recipients of frozen embryos.

Credentials/Documentation:

Proof of nonprofit status is required of nonprofit organizations and institutions. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. To apply, access the announcement through www.grants.gov. Enter the CFDA# and follow the website instructions. Applications submitted after the deadlines will not be accepted for review. The submission deadline will not be extended. Applications which do not conform to the requirements of the grant announcement will not be accepted for review and will be returned to the applicant. Applications may only be submitted electronically via www.grants.gov. Any applications submitted via any other means of electronic communication, including facsimile or electronic mail, will not be accepted for review.

Award Procedure:

Applications will be screened upon receipt. Those that are judged to be ineligible will be returned to the applicant. Accepted applications will be evaluated by a technical review panel composed of independent experts. The final funding decision will be determined by the Agency Director, who will take into consideration the recommendations of the review panel; programmatic needs, stated preferences; geographic location; and recommendations of DHHS Regional Health Coordinators. All applicants will be notified in writing of actions taken on their applications. Applications that are approved and funded will be issued A Notice of Award.

93.009 COMPASSION CAPITAL FUND

(CCF)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 1110 of the Social Security Act governing Social Services Research and Demonstration activities; the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2004. , Public Law 107-116.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide grants to charitable organizations to emulate model social service programs and to encourage research on the best practices of social service organizations. This is accomplished through the goal of assisting faith-based and community organizations to increase their effectiveness, enhance their ability to provide social services, expand their organizations, diversify their funding sources, and create collaborations to better serve those most in need. This is accomplished by funding experienced intermediary organizations in well-defined geographic locations with a proven track record of providing technical assistance to smaller faith-based and community organizations in their communities, providing one-time $50,000 grants to smaller faith-based and community organizations to build their capacity, and providing grants to strengthen broad-based collaborative community that are working to reduce gang involvement, youth violence, and child abuse and neglect and to foster positive youth development.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Intermediary organizations use the CCF funds to provide two services within their communities: 1) Training assistance to faith-based and community organizations; and 2) Financial support through sub-awards to some subset of the faith-based and community organizations in their communities. Technical assistance activities funded under CCF are to be conducted at no cost to interested faith-based and community organizations. Applicants must have demonstrated experience in the delivery of capacity-building assistance to smaller organizations in several of the following areas: strategic planning, financial management, board development, fund development, and outcome measurement. Technical assistance should be provided on a long-term, on-going basis to smaller organizations. The program goals are further accomplished through the issuance of sub-awards by the funded intermediary organizations to a diverse set of small faith-based and community organizations that seek to increase program and organizational effectiveness for a 12-month period. Sub-award recipients must adhere to the following: sub-award recipients must be chosen from fair and open competitive process; sub-award recipients must not be pre-selected; the awarding process must be fair and open competition and include outreach to both faith-based and community organizations; intermediary organizations must provide on-going technical assistance and capacity-building support to the organizations to which they issue sub-awards; and the criteria for selection must not include consideration of the religious nature of the program it offers. Priority for sub-awards is given to organizations that historically have not received grants from the Federal government. Intermediaries must not require sub-award applicants to provide matching funds even if the applicants offer matching funds in their applications. Intermediaries must not require sub-award applicants to have 501 (c) (3) status or to identify a sponsoring organization with 501 (c) (3) status; Organizations that partner with an intermediary to deliver technical assistance or provide a cost-sharing fund for the proposed project are not to be eligible for sub-awards, unless approved by the Administration for Children and families; Sub-awards should not be used to assist organizations in differing stages of development. Sub-awards may also be provided to promising organizations to expand the reach of existing programs; Sub-awards must not be used to provide direct services, but rather improve the sub-awardee's efficiency and capacity. The Office of Community Services (OCS) will not fund any project, where the role of the applicant is primarily to serve as a conduit for funds to organizations other than the applicant. The applicant must have a substantive role in the implementation of the project for which funding is requested. This prohibition does not bar the making of sub-grants or sub-contracting for specific services or activities needed to conduct the project. CCF monies shall not be used to support inherently religious practices such as religious instruction, worship, or proselytization. Grant or sub-award recipients, therefore, may not and will not be selected based on religious criteria. Neutral, non-religious criteria that neither favor nor disfavor religion must be employed in a selection of a grantee and sub-award recipients.

PERLC: PREPAREDNESS AND EMERGENCY RESPONSE LEARNING CENTER (PERLC) (Supporting PHEP; awards other than PHEP Cooperative agreement not recorded under 93.074

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 319C-1, Public Law 112-10; Public Health Services Act, Section 317(a); Public Health Services Act, Section 317(d).

OBJECTIVES:

The PHEP program is a critical source of funding, guidance, and technical assistance for state, territorial, and local public health departments. Preparedness activities funded by the PHEP program are targeted specifically for the development of emergency-ready public health departments that are flexible and adaptable. These efforts support the National Response Framework (NRF), which guides how the nation responds to all types of hazards including infectious disease outbreaks; natural disasters; biological, chemical, and radiological incidents; and explosions.

To help public health departments with their strategic planning, CDC identified 15 public health preparedness capabilities to serve as national public health preparedness standards. State and local jurisdictions can use CDC's Public Health Preparedness Capabilities: National Standards for State and Local Planning to better organize their work and identify the capabilities they have the resources to build or sustain. These standards help ensure that federal preparedness funds are directed to priority areas within individual jurisdictions.

The 2012 PHEP program is currently funded via a joint cooperative agreement award and aligned with the Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP). PHEP program guidance assists the 62 PHEP awardees in demonstrating measurable and sustainable progress toward achieving the 15 public health preparedness capabilities and other activities that promote safer and more resilient communities.

93.077 FAMILY SMOKING PREVENTION AND TOBACCO CONTROL ACT REGULATORY RESEARCH

NIH-FDA Tobacco Control Regulatory Research

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

The Public Health Service Act and the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, Public Law 111-31, 42 U.S.C 300u-3.

OBJECTIVES:

The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act (TCA) provides the authority to regulate tobacco product manufacturing, distribution and marketing. Regulatory research will provide the scientific evidence to guide the implementation of this authority. Research areas include (1) understanding the diversity of tobacco products, (2) reducing addiction to tobacco products, (3) reducing toxicity and carcinogenicity of tobacco products and smoke, (4) understanding the adverse health consequences of tobacco use, (5) understanding communications about tobacco products, (6) understanding tobacco product marketing, and (7) understanding how economics and policies affect tobacco product use. This regulatory research will help understand tobacco and its ingredients and constituents, tobacco addiction, tobacco marketing and labeling, and childhood tobacco use. The strategic priorities for these research areas can be found at <http://www.fda.gov/TobaccoProducts/PublicHealthScienceResearch/Research/ucm311860.htm>.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements; Project Grants; Project Grants (Contracts); Training

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

(1) Research project grants provide support for clearly defined projects or a small group of related research activities, and when appropriate, support of research conferences; (2) program project and center grants support large-scale, broad-based programs of research, usually interdisciplinary, consisting of several projects with a common focus; (3) exploratory/development and clinical exploratory/developmental grants encourage the development of new research activities in categorical program areas; (4) cooperative agreements support single or a group of related research activities with significant involvement of federal staff; (5) small grants support newer, less experienced investigators; investigators at institutions without a well developed research tradition and resources; the testing of new methods or techniques; small-scale exploratory and pilot studies, or exploration of an unusual research opportunity; small grants provide research support of up to $50,000 direct costs per year for a period of up to 2 years; (6) research training grants including fellowships and institutional training grants, career development grants and loan repayment contracts; and (7) SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of proposed research or research and development efforts to determine the quality of performance of the small business grantees. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercially viable products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support; STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application and the quality of performance of the small business concerns. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application. Research must directly support the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act and the Center for Tobacco Products, Food and Drug Administration Research Priorities found at <http://www.fda.gov/downloads/TobaccoProducts/NewsEvents/UCM293998.pdf>.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applicants should review the eligibility information in the individual funding opportunity announcements issued under this CFDA.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

This Tobacco Control Regulatory Research Program will support research aimed at providing guidance and evidence to develop regulation for tobacco product manufacturing, distribution and marketing. The general public will ultimately benefit.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is generally not applicable, though applicants requesting direct costs of $500,000 or more for any one year must contact the appropriate NIH Institute or Center no later than 6 weeks before the anticipated submission date. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards. Most applications must be prepared and submitted electronically. Most applicants use the SF 424 (Research & Related) for electronic submission. Information about the SF 424 form may be found on <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/funding/424/index.htm>, but application packages should be accessed through the appropriate funding opportunity announcement, found either on the NIH Guide to Grants and Contracts (<http://grants1.nih.gov/grants/guide/index.html>) or through the Grants.gov website (<http://www.grants.gov/>). Some institutions may submit the grant data directly (using what is called a system-to-system transfer). For further details, see grants.gov or eRA Commons. Application forms for SBIR and STTR grants may be obtained through the SBIR/STTR funding announcements posted on the NIH Guide to Grants and Contracts and the Grants.gov sites (see URLs listed above). All SBIR and STTR applications must be submitted electronically. The timeline for transition to electronic applications and the new forms may be found at: <http://era.nih.gov/ElectronicReceipt/>. For further assistance contact GrantsInfo, Telephone (301) 435-0714, Email: GrantsInfo@nih.gov. Consultation on a proposed project may be obtained from the Office of Disease Prevention in the Division of Program Coordination, Planning, and Strategic Initiatives at NIH. Applications are reviewed by principally nonfederal consultants recruited nationwide. The amounts of the award and period of support are determined on the basis of merit of the project and the nature of the grant mechanism. Electronic applications are submitted through the Grants.gov website.

Award Procedure:

All applications for research grants, cooperative agreements, training, and SBIR and STTR grants are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by the National Advisory Council of the NIH Institute or Center that will manage the award. All competitive applications compete for available funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit, program relevance, and program balance. FDA Center for Tobacco

93.079 COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS TO PROMOTE ADOLESCENT HEALTH THROUGH SCHOOL-BASED HIV/STD PREVENTION AND SCHOOL-BASED SURVEILLANCE

NA

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title III, Part B, Section 317(b)(k)(2), 42 U.S.C 247(b)(k)(2).

OBJECTIVES:

Funding will build the capacity of state, territorial, and local (STL) agencies and support the efforts of national, non-governmental organizations (NGO) to help school districts and schools develop and implement sustainable program activities to: 1) Reduce HIV infection and other STD among adolescents; and 2) Reduce disparities in HIV infection and other STD experienced by specific adolescent sub-populations. It is also expected that applicants activities will reinforce efforts to reduce teen pregnancy rates.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Throughout the 5-year cooperative agreement, awardees will conduct the Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS) and the School Health Profiles (Profiles) and will aim to improve the sexual health of high school students within their jurisdiction by delaying the onset of sexual activity; reducing the number of sexual partners; promoting the dual use of condoms and a highly effective contraceptive method among adolescents who are sexually active; increasing STD and HIV testing, counseling, and treatment; and addressing key social determinants of health to ensure we are reaching youth at most disproportionate risk for HIV infection and other STD. Separate funding pools are available for State and Territorial Education Agencies (SEA/TEA); Local Education Agencies (LEA); and National Non-Governmental Organizations. In addition, state, territorial, and local health agencies may be eligible for School-Based Surveillance funding if the education agency in their jurisdiction does not apply for it. Funding will be for agencies and organizations to implement four key strategies:

Strategy 1: School-Based Surveillance

Strategy 2: School-Based HIV/STD Prevention

Strategy 3: Capacity Building Assistance for School-Based HIV/STD Prevention

Strategy 4: School-Centered HIV/STD Prevention for Young Men Who Have Sex with Men.

Cooperative agreement funds may be used to support personnel, purchase equipment, supplies, services, and travel directly related to program activities and consistent with the scope of this program. Cooperative agreement funds are used to help schools prevent sexual risk behaviors that result in HIV and STD infection, especially among youth who are at highest risk. CDC believes that the specific scope and content of HIV education programs in schools should be locally determined and should be consistent with parental and community values. CDC supports local decision making by providing sound scientific information to grantees who work directly with schools, communities, and parents. Funds may be expended for written materials, pictorials, audiovisuals, questionnaires, or survey instruments, and educational group sessions related to HIV education youth, school, and college populations if approved in accordance with the document Content of AIDS-Related Written Materials, Pictorials, Audiovisuals, Questionnaires, Survey Instruments, and Educational Sessions in Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Assistance Programs. Cooperative agreement funds are also used to build state education and state health agency partnership and capacity to implement and coordinate school health programs across agencies and within schools. For example, cooperative agreement recipients implement and integrate effective policies, environmental changes, and educational strategies to reduce risky behaviors; leverage resources to avoid duplication at the state and local levels; and evaluate school health capacity-building efforts while implementing effective strategies to reduce priority health risks. Funds may not be used to conduct research projects, provide direct delivery of patient care or treatment services, or purchase or disseminate condoms. Although public health may have an assurance role in clinical testing and screening, funds are not to be used to provide clinical testing or screening services. Funds may not be used for purchasing computer equipment, office equipment, or furnishing, renting, or leasing office space, or to support constructions or renovation unless specifically approved.

Applicant Eligibility:

All 50 state education agencies, plus the District of Columbia, and the territorial education agencies in Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Northern Mariana Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, Guam, Republic of the Marshall Islands, and Republic of Palau are eligible to apply for Strategies 1 and 2. SEA and TEA are not eligible for Strategy 3. If a state or territorial education agency declines to apply for Strategy 1, the health agency in the same jurisdiction or the health agency's Bona Fide Agent may apply on their behalf. Either the education agency or the health agency in a state or territory must be awarded for Strategy 1 and include at least four of the seven sexual behavior questions on the 2015 YRBS questionnaire in order for the education agency in that state or territory to be awarded for Strategy 2. SHA/THA are not eligible for Strategy 2, 3 or 4. Thirty-one local education agencies are eligible to compete for Strategies 1 and 2, and twelve of the 31 LEA are eligible to compete for Strategy 4. LEA are not eligible for Strategy 3. If a local education agency declines to apply for Strategy 1 funding, the health agency in the same jurisdiction or the health agency's Bona Fide Agent may apply on its behalf. Either the local education agency or the health agency in the same jurisdiction must be awarded for Strategy 1 and include at least four of the seven sexual behavior questions on the 2015 YRBS questionnaire in order for the education agency in that jurisdiction to be eligible for funding for Strategies 2 and 4. LHA are not eligible for Strategy 2, 3 or 4.

NGO eligibility to compete for Strategy 3 funding is limited to:
Public and private non-profit organizations that serve education organizations;

National non-profit organizations with 501 C (3) IRS status (other than institutions of higher education); and National non-profit organizations without 501 C (3) IRS status (other than institutions of higher education).

NGO include those that represent constituencies (e.g., members, networks, affiliates and/or chapters within ten (10) or more states) with the greatest potential to affect national initiatives facilitated by CDC/DASH PS13-1308 awarded STL education agencies. An NGO must have a specific charge from its Articles of Incorporation, bylaws, or a resolution from its executive board or governing body to operate nationally within the United States or its territories. NGO are not eligible for Strategy 1 and 2.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Official state education agencies in states and territories in the United States (including the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, Guam, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Republic of Palau, and the U.S. Virgin Islands); local education agencies; public and private non-profit organizations that serve education organizations; school-aged youth; and school personnel including, but not limited to, teachers, school nurses, paraprofessionals, and school administrators.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program.

Award Procedure:

Application Deadline Date: April 26, 2013, 11:59 p.m. U.S. EST, on www.grants.gov, Phase I Review: all eligible applications will be initially reviewed for completeness by the CDC's Procurement and Grants Office (PGO) staff. In addition, eligible applications will be jointly reviewed for responsiveness by the CDC and PGO. Incomplete applications and applications that are non-responsive to the eligibility criteria will not advance to Phase II review. Applicants will be notified that the application did not meet eligibility and/or published submission requirements. Phase II Review: An objective review panel will evaluate complete and responsive applications according to the criteria listed in the criteria section of the funding opportunity announcement (FOA) for all strategies. This review will consist of a programmatic and budget assessment to ensure that the proposed project is technically and scientifically sound and the awarded entity is capable of performing the project. Applicants will be provided a copy of the technical, scientific, and budget assessment of their application. Phase III Review: All applications deemed eligible and technically acceptable by the review panel will be awarded in order of score and rank within their funding tier. In addition, the following factors may affect the funding decision: availability of funds and geographic diversity. Strategy 2 will be awarded after awards have been determined for the LEA awarded in Strategy 1. Strategy 4 will be awarded after awards have been determined for Strategy 2. It is anticipated that a variety of NGO will be awarded in Strategy 3. CDC will provide justification for any decision to fund out-of-rank order; factors such as geographical distribution and organizational diversity will be taken into consideration when making final funding decisions. Successful awardees will receive an electronic copy of the Notice of Award (NoA) from PGO. The NoA shall be the only binding, authorizing document between the awardee and CDC. The NoA will be signed by an authorized grants management official (GMO) and emailed to the awardee program director. Any application awarded in response to the FOA will be subject to the DUNS, SAM Registration and Federal Funding Accountability And Transparency Act Of 2006 (FFATA) requirements. 93.082 SODIUM REDUCTION IN COMMUNITIES

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized under Section 317(k)(2) of the Public Health Services Act (PHS Act), 42 U.S.C. 247b(k)(2) as amended.

93.085 RESEARCH ON RESEARCH INTEGRITYFEDERAL AGENCY:

Office of the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 301, Title III of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 241 et seq.)

OBJECTIVES:

The primary purpose of this grant program is to foster innovative approaches to empirical research on societal, organizational, group, and individual factors that affect, both positively and negatively, integrity in research. Integrity is defined as the use of honest and verifiable methods in proposing, performing, and evaluating research and reporting research results with particular attention to adherence to rules, regulations, guidelines, and commonly accepted professional codes or norms. The Office of Research Integrity (ORI) seeks to support research and conferences designed explicitly to: (a) identify risk factors that make misconduct more likely; (b) create an evidence base for proactive interventions; and (c) build on lessons learned through previous research and the experiences of those who have been involved in guiding research misconduct proceedings. The core assumption of this announcement is that the social, cultural, and behavioral mechanisms underlying research misconduct must be understood to address the problem of misconduct.

Secondarily, this grant program seeks to support research to develop and test methods to better identify falsification, fabrication, and plagiarism. The tools necessary for detecting misconduct need to be constantly upgraded, tested, verified, and made available to the research community.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research project grants provide support for clearly defined projects by a named investigator in an area representing his/her specific interests and competencies. Applicants are asked to address the societal, organizational, group or individual factors that affect integrity in research, both positively and negatively. Successful projects will be designed to produce clear evidence of problem areas in community standards, self-regulation, practice norms, and non-adherence to accepted codes of conduct, and/or to solutions to these problems. Funds may also be used for the creation and testing of tools that can be used to identify research misconduct. Funds may not be used for construction or renovation of buildings. This program is subject to the provisions of 45 CFR 75.

Applicant Eligibility:

Public, private or nonprofit agencies (including State and local government agencies) eligible Federal agencies, universities, colleges, hospitals and academic or research institutions may apply for research grants.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Individuals and public, private, profit or nonprofit organizations.

Credentials/Documentation:

Nonprofit organizations must provide evidence of tax-exempt status. When projects involve the collaborative efforts of more than one organization or require the use of services or facilities not under the direct control of the applicant, written assurances of specific support or agreements must be submitted by the affected parties. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Each announcement provides specific additional instructions regarding the contents of the narrative description of the project, budget justification, and other required information. Application will be screened upon receipt. Those that are deemed to be ineligible will be returned to the applicant.

Award Procedure:

Application packages should be accessed through the appropriate funding opportunity announcement, found on Grants.gov website (<http://www.grants.gov/>). Consultation on a proposed project may be obtained from the Division of Education and Integrity staff responsible for the research. Applications are reviewed by principally nonfederal consultants recruited nationwide from the research and research integrity fields. The amounts of the award and period of support are determined on the basis of merit of the project and the nature of the grant mechanism. All applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by a panel of independent experts who make recommendations for action to the Office of Research Integrity. After considering the recommendations of the panel, the Director of the Office of Research Integrity makes the final decision on the funding of applications. All applicants are notified in writing of actions taken on their applications. A formal notification in the form of a Notice of Award (NoA) will be provided to the applicant organization.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide Federal financial participation (FFP) to States, Indian Tribes, Tribal organizations and Tribal consortia (Tribes) who opt to provide guardianship assistance payments for the care of children by relatives who have assumed legal guardianship of eligible children for whom they previously cared as foster parents. This assistance is intended to prevent inappropriately long stays in foster care and to promote the healthy development of children through increased safety, permanency and well-being.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Federal assistance may be used only in support of the care of children who meet the eligibility requirements and their siblings under certain situations as specified in the statute. All relatives assuming guardianship of such children are eligible for the nonrecurring expenses associated with obtaining legal guardianship up to $2,000. A State or Tribe may receive FFP only if its title IV-E plan has been approved by the Secretary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Funds are available to States (including the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam and American Samoa) and to Tribes with approved title IV-E plans.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Beneficiaries are children who meet the following requirements: (1) the child has been eligible for title IV-E foster care maintenance payments while residing for at least six consecutive months in the home of the prospective relative guardian; and (2) the State or Tribe has determined that the permanency options of being returned home or adoption are not appropriate for the child; and (3) the child demonstrates a strong attachment to the prospective relative guardian and the prospective guardian is committed to caring permanently for the child; and (4) for children who have attained the age of 14, the child has been consulted regarding the kinship guardianship arrangement. Beneficiaries may also be siblings of eligible children placed in the same kinship guardianship arrangement. FFP is available to States and Tribes for payments made to a relative guardian in accordance with a kinship guardianship agreement that is in writing, negotiated and binding.

The program was amended (through Public Law 13-183) effective September 29, 2014 to allow continuation of title IV-E kinship guardianship assistance payments if the relative guardian dies or is incapacitated and a successor legal guardian is named in the agreement (or in any amendments to the agreement.).

Award Procedure:

Quarterly awards are made on the basis of estimated expenditures, which are later revised to include only actual allowable claimed expenditures. Next quarter estimates are due on July 30, October 30, January 30 and April 30 each year. Final decisions and awards are made by the Headquarters Office.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Funding is provided on an open-ended basis in accordance with sec. 474(a) of the Social Security Act.

93.092 AFFORDABLE CARE ACT (ACA) PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY EDUCATION PROGRAM

(PREP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, Title II Role Of Public Programs, Subtitle L, Maternal and Child Health Services , Title V, Section 2953, Public Law 113-93, 42 U.S.C 713(c)(1); The Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act of 2015 , Section 215, Public Law 114-10.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this program is to educate adolescents and young adults on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, including HIV/AIDS. The Affordable Care Act was established and provided funding for this program through FY 2014. The program was extended through September 30, 2017 in P.L. 114-110.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants; Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

To carry out personal responsibility education programs designed to educate adolescents on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, including HIV/AIDS. The State program component must fund teen pregnancy prevention and personal responsibility education programs that have been proven on the basis of rigorous scientific research, to change behavior, which means delaying sexual activity, increasing condom or contraceptive use for sexually active youth, or reducing pregnancy among youth. State programs must teach adulthood preparation subjects including healthy relationships, adolescent development, financial literacy, parent-child communication, educational and career success, and healthy life skills. Applicants for innovative program funding should describe the research base for proposed projects, such as the rationale for substantial modifications to evidence-based models and/or developmental research that suggests an innovative model is likely to be effective with a vulnerable or underserved population. Additionally, the innovative practices component must implement programs to target high-risk, vulnerable, and culturally under-represented youth populations. Such programs must be either significant modifications of the above list of evidence-based models or are based upon other promising approaches with a strong research basis. All programs must agree to participate in a rigorous Federal evaluation of their project. Innovative programs must conduct their own rigorous, independent evaluations unless they are selected for the Federal evaluation. The list of evidence-based models was developed and is updated by the HHS Office of the Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation (ASPE). From the $75,000,000 appropriation, $10,000,000 (13.3%) is designated for PREIS, which are demonstration grants for innovative teen pregnancy prevention and personal responsibility education programs (PREIS); $3,250,000 (5% of the appropriation after the $10,000,000 is removed) is set aside for Tribes and Tribal organizations; $6,500,000 (10% of the appropriation after the $10,000,000 is removed) is designated for program support and evaluation. The remaining $55,250,000 (73.7% of the appropriation) is for States to implement evidence-based demonstration projects and is allotted by formula. However, beginning in 2012, funds from States that did not apply for FY10 or FY11 funding was distributed on a discretionary basis to community-based organizations within those States. These Competitive PREP projects have a three year project period.

Applicant Eligibility:

There is $55,250,000 appropriated annually to fund 59 States and Territories to enable them to carry out Personal Responsibility Education Programs (PREP). Eligible applicants include the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, Northern Mariana Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau.

If any States or Territories did not apply for funding in FY 2010 or 2011, they are no longer eligible to apply for this program and their allotments were made available as Competitive PREP grants to community-based organizations for the same State or territory. The annual award for the first cohort of Competitive PREP was $18,856,405. The estimated annual award for the second cohort of Competitive PREP grants to be awarded in FY2015 is $10,000,000.

Funds ($10,000,000) shall be reserved to award PREP Innovative Strategies (PREIS) grants to entities to implement innovative youth pregnancy prevention strategies and target services to high-risk, vulnerable, and culturally under-represented youth populations.

Funds ($3,250,000) shall be reserved for Tribal PREP grants to Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

Funds ($6,500,000) shall be reserved for program support that may be provided directly or through a competitive award process. Program support includes research, training and technical assistance, providing consultation and resources on a broad array of teen pregnancy prevention strategies, and developing materials to support grant activities. Funds shall also be reserved to evaluate PREP programs and activities.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

PREP shall provide services to adolescents and young adults. Applicants are encouraged to serve youth populations that are the most high-risk or vulnerable for pregnancies or otherwise have special circumstances, including youth in and aging of out foster care, homeless youth, youth with HIV/AIDS, pregnant youth who are under 21 years of age, mothers who are under 21 years of age, and youth residing in areas with high birth rates for youth. Applicants must include the most recent pregnancy data for the State for youth ages 10 to 14 and youth ages 15-19, and the most recent birth rates among the same age groups, and trends in those rates for the most recently preceding 5-year period for which data are available.

Credentials/Documentation:

A signed letter from the authorized representative must accompany each application; it should include documentation establishing the authorized representatives authority to apply for and administer the PREP grant program funds on behalf of the State or Territory.

For other funding available under this CFDA number, non-profit organizations applying for funding are required to submit proof of their non-profit status. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. The PREP program includes formula and competitive grant awards to a range of entities. The OMB circulars that are relevant vary according to the funding opportunity and the kind of organization that will be implementing the grant award.

Award Procedure:

For FY 2010 and FY 2011 funds allotted to States and Territories (States), the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) advised States and Territories of the funding opportunity through a Federal Register notice and/or by a Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA). Applications were rated Approved, Approved with Conditions, or Approval Pending by Program administrators. Applicants that received an Approved rating received grant awards and did not need to send further information. States that submitted applications that were Approved with Conditions" received grant awards with descriptions of weaknesses and subsequent conditions that were to be met in order to receive Approved status. The States were given a set period to send to a response to ACF that addressed the identified weaknesses. States that submitted applications that were rated Approval Pending received a list of weaknesses cited by the reviewer and directions for submitting an amended application that addressed the weaknesses. States and Territories that were awarded FY 2010 and/or FY 2011 funds were to submit a letter of intent in order to receive awards in FY 2012, FY 2013 and FY 2014. There are 49 State PREP grantees.

A FOA was published to award funds to community based organizations in the States and Territories that did not receive FY 2010 and FY 2011 PREP funding. Applications were reviewed by an Objective Review Committee which applied the criteria given in the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA) in order to derive priority scores. The review panels consisted of expert peer reviewers who reviewed each application that met the responsiveness and screening criteria. Federal staff provided oversight to the review process. Thirty-seven applicants were awarded Competitive PREP funding in FY2012 for a three year project period.

For funds reserved for PREIS grants, applications were reviewed on a nationwide basis and in competition with other submitted applications. Eligible applications were reviewed by an Objective Review Committee which applied the criteria given in the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA) in order to derive priority scores. The applications were reviewed by expert peer reviewers who reviewed each application that met the responsiveness and screening criteria. Federal staff provided administrative oversight to the grant review process. The review results formed the basis for development of the programmatic terms and conditions of the cooperative agreement. Funding decision recommendations were provided to the Director of the Office of Adolescent Health and the Commissioner for the Administration on Children, Youth and Families (ACYF) in order by score and rank determined by the review panel. Final award decisions were made collaboratively by the Director of OAH and the Commissioner of ACYF. In making the award decision, the Director and the Commissioner took into account the score and rank order given by the Objective Review Committee, and other considerations given in the FOA. Thirteen applicants were awarded cooperative agreements in FY2010 and two grantees relinquished their funding. There are 11 funded PREIS projects.

Funds reserved for grants to Indian tribes and tribal organizations were made available in a manner determined by the Secretary, in consultation with Indian tribes and tribal organizations, to be appropriate. In FY 2011, a funding opportunity announcement was issued for the award of the grants. Sixteen applicants were awarded Tribal PREP funding through the discretionary grant review process.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title V, Public Law 113-93.

This program has no matching requirements. Cost sharing or matching of non-Federal funds is not required. However, funded programs should build on but not duplicate or replace current Federal programs as well as state, local or community programs, and programs should coordinate with existing programs and resources in the community.

This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. This program has an MOE (Maintenance of Effort) requirement for states and local entities to require that expenditure of non-federal funds for activities, programs or initiatives allowed in this program be no less than such expenditures in FY 09. The intent is to supplement and not supplant the funds expended in FY 09 or the year prior to new awards.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Funds allotted to States and Territories for a fiscal year shall remain available for expenditure by the State through the end of the second succeeding fiscal year. If a State or territory did not submit an application for FY2010 or FY2011, they are no longer be eligible to submit an application to receive funds from the amounts allotted to the State for each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014. State PREP grantees awarded in FY2010 and FY2011 will submit a letter of intent to receive FY2015 funding.

State PREP allocated funded that was not requested by States is used to award three year discretionary grants to local organizations and entities for the same purpose and in the same geographic regions in FY2012. The Competitive PREP grant funding is available over a 36 month project period from FY2012 through FY2014. Annual funding for this program is to be expended within 12 months of award. A funding opportunity announcement will be drafted and published to award FY2015 appropriated Competitive PREP funding.

The PREIS grantees were awarded funding through cooperative agreements over a five year project period. The annual funding is to be expended at the end of each 12 month budget period. Funding available through the FY2015 extension of the program will be awarded through non-competing continuation to current PREIS grantees.

Tribal PREP grants are discretionary awards with a four year project period. Annual awards are to be expended at the end of each 12 month budget period. Funding available through the FY2015 extension of the program will be awarded through non-competing continuations to current Tribal PREP grantees.

Additional information about the availability of funding is provided in the funding opportunity announcements. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Periodic draw downs are based upon need and project progress.

Reports:

Each award recipient will submit semi-annual performance progress, fiscal and performance measure data reports. Grantees must submit all required reports in a timely manner and in the recommended format provided. The grantees shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these in a timely manner could affect future funding. The report is an accounting of expenditures for each budget year of the project. There is a requirement for performance measurement data collection and performance progress reporting (e.g., monitoring requirements) for the State PREP, PREIS, Tribal PREP and Competitive PREP grantees. Tribal consults were conducted prior to the finalization of the Tribal PREP funding opportunity announcement, to include discussion on the reporting requirements. The recipient shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (SF-425) due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period. The report is an accounting of expenditures for each year of the project. More specific information on this reporting requirement was included in the Notice of Grant Award. No performance monitoring is required.

RELATED PROGRAMS:

93.060 Competitive Abstinence Education (CAE); 93.235 Abstinence Education Program

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Not Applicable.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Funded State programs must replicate evidence-based, effective programs or strategies that substantially incorporate elements of effective programs that have been proven on the basis of rigorous scientific research to change behavior, which means delaying sexual activity, increasing condom or contraceptive use for sexually active youth, or reducing pregnancy among youth. The programs must include activities to educate youth who are sexually active regarding responsible sexual behavior with respect to both abstinence and the use of contraception. Such activities should teach adulthood preparation subjects including healthy relationships, adolescent development, financial literacy, parent-child communication, educational and career success, and healthy life skills. The programs must: be medically-accurate and complete; include activities to educate youth who are sexually active regarding responsible sexual behavior with respect to both abstinence and the use of contraception; place substantial emphasis on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy among youth and sexually transmitted infections; and must provide age-appropriate information and activities. The information and activities carried out under the program must be provided in the cultural context that is most appropriate for individuals in the particular population group to which they are directed.

REQUIREMENTS OF INNOVATIVE STRATEGIES PROJECTS: Proposals were funded based on how effectively they can develop, replicate, refine, and test innovative strategies for preventing teenage pregnancy. Programs must be medically accurate, age appropriate, and target services to identified vulnerable and at-risk populations. Funded projects are expected to generate lessons learned so others can benefit from these strategies and innovative approaches and increase the capacity of communities to develop, implement, and evaluate interventions for dissemination and replication by others. Funded projects must show that the proposed intervention is: (a) based on some preliminary evidence of effectiveness; (b) a significant adaptation of an evidence-based program; or (c) is a new and innovative approach to teenage pregnancy prevention with a sound basis in research.

REQUIREMENTS OF TRIBAL PROJECTS: Criteria for Tribal projects were developed by the Secretary, in consultation with Indian Tribes and Tribal Organizations that were deemed appropriate. Tribal PREP funding is directed toward the development of culturally appropriate comprehensive teen pregnancy prevention programs that incorporate medically accurate approaches replicating effective programs or elements of programs that have been demonstrated to change behavior. Tribal PREP focuses on the same fundamental requirements as the State PREP projects-the education of youth on both abstinence and contraception and on other adulthood preparation subjects with the goal of preventing teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs) including HIV/AIDS. Funds support PREP efforts that are dedicated to the development of comprehensive, high quality interventions and services that rely on the best available research evidence to inform and guide practice. Since there are few studies of teen pregnancy prevention programs targeting youth in Tribal communities, adaptation and innovation are important. Further, programs that currently serve Native youth have not been rigorously evaluated and may not offer strong models for replication. Tribes and tribal organizations are encouraged, therefore, to adapt evidence-based (EB) models (or elements of EB models) that address the unique cultural needs of their communities. Adaptation must retain core elements of proven effective programs.

REQUIREMENTS OF COMPETITIVE PREP PROJECTS: Competitive PREP funds support projects that educate youth between the ages of 10 and 19, and pregnant and parenting youth, under age 21, on abstinence and contraception for teen prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs), including HIV/AIDS. Applicants must also provide programming on at least three of six adulthood preparation subjects that are discussed in the published funding opportunity announcement. Further PREP funding is directed toward the development of comprehensive, teen pregnancy prevention programs that incorporate medically accurate approaches, while replicating evidence-based programs or elements of programs that have been demonstrated to change behavior. FYSB Competitive PREP funding supports efforts that are dedicated to the development of comprehensive, culturally appropriate interventions and services that rely on the best available research to inform and guide practice.

Renewals:

From 60 to 90 days. Each year following the initial competitive funding, non-competitive continuation applications will be received and processed within 60-90 days.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula.

This program has no matching requirements.

This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

The HPOG program uses the project period system of funding. Projects are programmatically approved for support in their entirety, but are funded in annual increments called budget periods. Through a competitive process HPOG projects are approved for five year project periods. Each new budget period begins September 30. In general, funding for each budget period must be obligated within the budget period. Recipients are required to submit a non-competing continuation application and semi-annual performance progress reports as a prerequisite to approval and funding of each subsequent budget period within the approved project period. Funding for each budget period is contingent on satisfactory progress, the availability of funds, and the continued best interests of the Federal government. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Funds are drawn down by grantees on a periodic basis, typically each month.

Reports:

Grantees must submit semi-annual performance progress reports. Each semi-annual progress report is due no later than 30 days after the end of the reporting period. Grantees must submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these timely could affect future funding. The SF 425 FFR will be used to report Financial Status and Cash Transactions. The report is an accounting of expenditures under the project that year. Grantees must submit semi-annual performance progress reports. Each semi-annual progress report is due no later than 30 days after the end of the reporting period. The grantees shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these timely could affect future funding. The SF 425 FFR will be used to report Financial Status and Cash Transactions. The report is an accounting of expenditures under the project that year. Federal staff primarily use the semi-annual performance progress reports for the purpose of performance monitoring. Actual progress is compared to projected outcomes.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503.

93.097 STRENGTHENING THE NATION'S PUBLIC HEALTH SYSTEM THROUGH A NATIONAL VOLUNTARY ACCREDITATION PROGRAM FOR STATE, TRIBAL, LOCAL AND TERRITORIAL HEALTH DEPARTMENTS

A National Voluntary Accreditation Program for State, Tribal, Local and Territorial Health Departments

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized under section 317(k) (2) of the Public Health Service Act [42 U.S.C. 247(b)(k)(2)].

OBJECTIVES:

This project will support the operations and continuous improvement of a national accreditation program for state, tribal, local and territorial public health departments. This program will result in increased visibility for accreditation, a stronger public health accreditation program, increased demonstration of accountability of public health programs to decision makers and to the public, increased adoption of evidence based practices, increased use of quality improvement, improved capacity for state, tribal, local and territorial health departments to meet nationally established accreditation standards, and increased recognition of public health roles and value by leaders and the public.

Specific objectives may/will include but are not limited to:

1. Support communications and education regarding the accreditation program.
2. Establish a process of continuous improvement of the accreditation standards, tools, and processes to ensure a relevant, current and smoothly functioning program (all elements of the current program can be found at www.phaboard.org).
3. Strengthen strategic partnerships to support accreditation.
4. Strengthen the evidence base for accreditation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Project funds may be used for costs associated with planning, organizing, conducting, and supporting the National Voluntary Accreditation Program for State, Tribal, Local and Territorial Health Departments, and for the implementation of the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB) program elements as described in Section 050 above and through CDC allowable and unallowable expenses. Per CDC-RFA-OT13-1301, Part II Section D.15 Funding Restrictions, page 27. Detailed budget restrictions will be specified in corresponding most recent Notice of Award. Public Health assigns these funds for this Budget Activity.

Applicant Eligibility:

1. Eligible Applicants: Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB), a nonprofit with 501(c)3 IRS status.
2. Special Eligibility Requirements: The only eligible applicant for this award is the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB), a 501(c)3 independent accrediting body that administers the national voluntary public health department accreditation program.
3. Justification for Less than Maximum Competition: The nature of the activities under this award are best employed by focusing on the entity to which this cooperative agreement is limited, per memorandum for approval for single-eligibility competition, which was approved and dated December 20, 2012.

PHAB was found to be uniquely qualified, as it is the organization that has been established as the national accrediting body for state, tribal, local and territorial health departments. PHAB was determined to have the experience and program infrastructure, which includes field-driven and tested standards, measures and accreditation assessment process. PHAB is also widely accepted as the national accrediting body for state, local tribal and territorial health departments by the constituency organizations for these agencies and as evidenced by the visible mention of PHAB within national policy documents (e.g., Institute of Medicine reports, Healthy People 2020).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

State, Tribal, Local and Territorial Public Health Departments via a National Voluntary Accreditation Program administered by the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB), a 501(c)3 independent accrediting entity.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards.

Award Procedure:

Phase I Review: Eligible application will be initially reviewed for completeness by the CDC's Procurement and Grants Office (PGO) staff. In addition, eligible application will be jointly reviewed for responsiveness by CDC OSTLTS and PGO. 93.099 COLLABORATION WITH THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION AND ITS REGIONAL OFFICES FOR GLOBAL HEALTH SECURITY AND THE INTERNATIONAL HEALTH REGULATIONS (IHR 2005)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 307 as amended [42 U.S.C. 241 and 2421].

OBJECTIVES:

On September 19, 2011, the Government of the United States of America and the World Health Organization (WHO) signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) to help WHO Member States strengthen their capabilities to support the International Health Regulations (IHR), an international agreement that requires Member States to prevent and respond to acute public health risks that have the potential to cross borders. The MOU includes specific statements that authorize WHO and its regional offices to pursue activities that improve the ability of all nations to detect, report, and respond to infectious diseases quickly and accurately. The purpose is to assist WHO in implementing the MOU regarding the International Health Regulations, including the development and implementation of coordinated plans and networks that enable national governments and regional authorities globally to better address infectious diseases, particularly emerging infections. Specific activities will focus on improving infectious disease surveillance and response; enhancing knowledge generation, innovation, and tools for improved management that build public health infrastructure and strengthen regional health leadership and collaboration; sharing knowledge, tools and other resources in support of applied epidemiology; and developing improved infectious disease surveillance, prevention and control strategies.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Support implementation of the IHR by analyzing regional, national, and local resources devoted to infectious diseases and identifying areas for implementation of infectious disease activities consistent with the purpose of this cooperative agreement. Develop, implement, and conduct projects to enhance infectious disease surveillance, response, prevention, and control. Strengthen regional and national public health networks and inter-sectorial co-operation and collaborate with other health organizations, academic institutions, and community groups as appropriate to accomplish program activities. Strengthen regional and national public health leadership and collaboration. Monitor and evaluate overall program performance and the progress of individual projects or activities. Publish and disseminate findings, program evaluations, and lessons learned. Recipients may not use funds for research.

Recipients may not use funds for clinical care.

Recipients may only expend funds for reasonable program purposes, including personnel, travel, supplies, and services, such as contractual.

Awardees may not generally use HHS/CDC/ATSDR funding for the purchase of furniture or equipment. Any such proposed spending must be identified in the budget.

The direct and primary recipient in a cooperative agreement program must perform a substantial role in carrying out project objectives and not merely serve as a conduit for an award to another party or provider who is ineligible.

Reimbursement of pre-award costs is not allowed.

Applicant Eligibility:

Only the World Health Organization and its regional offices are eligible to apply. For purposes of this document, the term WHO includes its regional offices (e.g., PAHO, EMRO, AFRO, SEARO, etc). WHO is the only international and intergovernmental agency qualified to conduct activities under this cooperative agreement because:

WHO is an international public health agency that works to improve health and living standards globally. WHO is part of the United Nations system. As such, WHO has a unique position among the world's health agencies as the lead technical agency for health globally. For additional information, please see <http://www.who.org>

WHO and its Regional Offices are at the apex of global public health organizations and thus have an exclusive status as the United States governments key partners for global public health.

On September 19, 2011, the Government of the United States of America and the World Health Organization signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) to help developing nations strengthen their capabilities to support the International Health Regulations (IHR). The IHR (2005) is an international agreement that requires WHO Member States to prevent and respond to acute public health risks that have the potential to cross borders and threaten people worldwide. The U.S. Government and WHO share a commitment to strengthen cooperation in the area of global health security to ensure that the international community effectively manages public health risks. Improving the ability of all nations to detect, report, and respond to infectious diseases quickly and accurately lies at the heart of the global community's ability to address all infectious disease threats, as reflected in the IHR. The MOU establishes a framework for collaboration in line with the provisions set forth in the IHR, which provides a construct for coordinating the management of actions in the event of a public health emergency of international concern. The MOU was signed by Secretary Kathleen Sebelius, Department of Health and Human Services, and Director-General Margaret Chan, World Health Organization, and subsequently by Ambassador Betty E. King, United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations in Geneva. The full text of the MOU can be accessed at:

<http://www.globalhealth.gov/global-health-topics/health-diplomacy/agreements-and-regulations/20110922-mem.html>.

The MOU includes the following specific statements that support sole-source consideration of WHO and its regional offices (including PAHO) for funding activities that fall under the scope of the MOU: Section 8.a.: The United States Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) continues to serve as the primary substantive interface with WHO on global health and health security. DHHS plans to ensure coordination with other U.S. Government departments, agencies, and entities that collaborate on health matters within the scope of this Memorandum to enhance the effectiveness of such activities. The U.S. Government agencies intend to develop programs and provide funds through mechanisms that may be determined jointly by the U.S. Government agency and WHO. Section 8.b.: Specific funding mechanisms are intended to be developed and U.S. Government agencies intend to collaborate with WHO to define specific work to be undertaken by the Participants and the division of responsibilities..

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The World Health Organization and its regional offices work will benefit individuals worldwide, including in the U.S., through collaboration with National Ministries of Health and other organizations/institutions.

The purpose is to support WHO to reduce the global disease burden through improved international capacity to detect and respond to emerging infectious diseases and other threats.

These grants are funded with a set-aside from the MCH Block grant program. SPRANS grants are funded with 15 percent of the Block Grant appropriation of up to $600 million. When the appropriation exceeds $600 million, 12.75 percent of the amount over $600 million is set aside for the Community Integrated Service Systems grants. 15 percent of the balance remaining over $600 million is also for SPRANS. The CISS program is to develop and expand the following: (1) Home visitation; (2) increased participation of obstetricians and pediatricians; (3) integrated service delivery systems; (4) maternal and child health centers for women and infants, under the direction of a not-for-profit hospital; (5) services for rural populations; and (6) integrated state and community service systems for children and youth with special health care needs. 93.113 ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Sections 301, 401, 437, 463 and 487, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 241, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended, SBIR and STTR Reauthorization Act of 2011, Public Law 113-6.

OBJECTIVES:

To foster understanding of human health effects of exposure to environmental agents in the hope that these studies will lead to: the identification of agents that pose a hazard and threat of disease, disorders and defects in humans; the development of effective public health or disease prevention strategies; the overall improvement of human health effects due to environmental agents; the development of products and technologies designed to better study or ameliorate the effects of environmental agents; and the successful training of research scientists in all areas of environmental health research. Supported grant programs focus on the following areas: (1) Understanding biological responses to environmental agents by determining how chemical and physical agents cause pathological changes in molecules, cells, tissues, and organs, and become manifested as respiratory disease, neurological, behavioral and developmental abnormalities, cancer, and other disorders; (2) Determining the mechanisms of toxicity of ubiquitous agents like metals, natural and synthetic chemicals, pesticides, and materials such as nanoparticles, and natural toxic substances, and their effects of on various human organ systems, on metabolism, on the endocrine and immune systems, and on other biological functions; (3) Developing and integrating scientific knowledge about potentially toxic and hazardous chemicals by concentrating on toxicological research, testing, test development, validation and risk estimation; (4) Identifying interactions between environmental stressors and genetic susceptibility and understanding biologic mechanisms underlying these interactions, including the study of environmental influences on epigenomics and transcriptional regulation; (5) Conducting environmental public health research, including in areas of environmental justice and health disparities, that requires communities as active participants in all stages of research, dissemination, and evaluation to advance both the science and the development of practical materials for use in communities, with a focus on translating research findings into tools, materials, and resources that can be used to prevent, reduce, or eliminate adverse health outcomes caused by environmental exposures; (6) Expanding and improving the SBIR program; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation; (7) Expanding and improving the STTR program to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation; (8) Providing support for broadly based multi-disciplinary research and training programs in environmental health. These programs include the Environmental Health Sciences Core Centers, which serve as national focal points and resources for research and manpower development. The Centers for Neurodegenerative Science addresses the need for integrated research efforts involving basic and clinical scientists in a quest to discover the causes of and possible treatments for neurodegenerative diseases. The Breast Cancer and the Environment Research Program (co-funded with NCI) studies the impact of prenatal-to-adult environmental exposures that may predispose a woman to breast cancer. A special emphasis is on the impact of environmental factors on a girls pubertal development, a known risk factor for breast cancer. Through these programs, NIEHS expects to achieve the long range goal of developing new clinical and public health applications to improve disease prevention, diagnosis, and therapy. Additional Centers programs developed in recent years, include the Centers for Oceans and Human Health (co-funded with NSF), Children's Environmental Health Centers (co-funded with US EPA) and the Autism Centers of Excellence (co-funded with other NIH Institutes) and the ; (9) Supporting research training programs which serve to increase the pool of trained research manpower with needed expertise in the Environmental Health Sciences through support of Individual and Institutional National Research Service Awards (NRSA); (10) The Outstanding New Environmental Scientist Program which provides first time research grant funding to outstanding junior scientists in the formative stages of their career who are proposing to make a long term commitment to environmental health sciences research and to address the adverse effects on environmental exposures on human biology, human pathophysiology and human disease.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants and Cooperative Agreements are intended to support the direct costs of a project, in accordance with an approved budget, plus an appropriate amount for indirect costs. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of the Phase II application. A number of Career Development awards are supported. The Independent Scientist Award provides up to five years of salary support for newly independent scientists who have recently obtained independent research funding, generally an R01 research grant from NIEHS. The award is intended to allow the candidate protected time to focus on the further development of the independent research career and does not include additional research support. The Mentored Clinical Research Career Development Award provides three to five years of salary support for investigators with clinical degrees (e.g., M.D., D.V.M.). The Transition to Independent Environmental Health Research (TIEHR) Career Development Award provides three years of support for candidates who are within three years of their first independent faculty appointment and who have not yet obtained significant research grant funding (an R01 or equivalent). The award includes salary support and pilot funding. The Mentored Patient-Oriented Research Career Development Award provides up to five years of support for clinically trained investigators who make a commitment to focus on patient-oriented research. The MidCareer Investigator Award in Patient-Oriented Research provides up to five years of support to outstanding clinical scientists who are actively engaged in patient-oriented research and who are within 15 years of their specialty training. The Mentored Quantitative Research Development Award provides up to five years of support for junior faculty with quantitative scientific and engineering backgrounds outside of biology or medicine that are transitioning to behavioral or biomedical research. The NIH Pathway to Independence Award is divided into two phases. The initial award (K99) provides up to two years of mentored, postdoctoral support. The second phase (R00) provides up to three years of independent research support, when the awardee accepts a full-time tenure track, or equivalent, faculty position. All of these Career Development awards provide salary consistent with the level of effort devoted to the research career development activities, plus fringe benefits, an allowance for career development activities and 8 percent fiscal and administrative costs. All Career Development Awards, with the exception of the NIH Pathway to Independence Award, have a US citizenship requirement. Details of specific restrictions for the Career Development Awards can be found at <http://www.niehs.nih.gov/careers/research/trainingfrom/career/index.cfm>. NIEHS Core Center grants (P30) are primarily intended to provide infrastructure support and the support of core research facilities. In addition, an appropriate facilities and administrative cost is provided as determined by negotiated agreement with the grantee's cognizant government organization. National Research Service Awards (NRSA): Individual predoctoral and postdoctoral training awards are made for the support of fellows who engage in research training in environmental toxicology, environmental pathology, environmental mutagenesis, or environmental epidemiology/biostatistics. In addition to individual training awards, institutional training grants (T32) are made to institutions to enable institutions to make awards to individuals selected by them, for both predoctoral and postdoctoral research training in the aforementioned areas. Each individual who receives a postdoctoral NRSA, either through an institutional or individual training award mechanism, is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Grants, Cooperative Agreements, Science Education Grants, SBIR Grants, Independent Scientist Awards, Mentored Research Scientist Development Award, Mentored Clinical Scientist Development Award, and the Academic Career Awards: A university, college, hospital, State, local or tribal governments, nonprofit research institution, or for-profit organization may submit an application and receive a grant for support of research by a named principal investigator. Candidates for Academic Career Awards and Midcareer Investigator Awards in Patient Oriented Research must have a doctoral degree and peer-reviewed, independent, research support at the time the award is made. Candidates for Mentored Clinical Scientist Development Awards and Mentored Patient Oriented Research Career Development Awards must have a clinical degree or its equivalent and must have initiated post graduate clinical training. Candidates holding a Ph.D. degree are ineligible. Candidates who have served as principal investigators on PHS-supported research projects are ineligible. A candidate for Academic Career Awards must have a clinical or research doctorate degree. Those eligible for the Development Award must be able to devote at least 75 percent effort. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 317(a)317E, 42 U.S.C. 247b-b(a), as amended; Health Services and Centers Amendments of 1978, Public Law 95-626; Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981, as amended, Public Law 97-35; Preventive Health Amendments of 1984, Public Law 98-555; Public Health Service Act of 1987, as amended, Public Law 100-177; TB Prevention Amendments Act of 1990, as amended, Public Law 101-368.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist State and local health agencies in carrying out tuberculosis (TB) control activities designed to prevent transmission of infection and disease. Financial assistance is provided to TB programs to ensure that the program needs for the core TB prevention and control activities are met: finding all cases of active tuberculosis and ensuring completion of therapy; finding and screening persons who have had contact with TB patients, evaluating them for TB infection and disease, and ensuring completion of appropriate treatment, and conducting TB surveillance and TB public health laboratory activities that are essential to addressing these priorities. Each of these core activities (completion of therapy, contact investigation, TB surveillance, and TB laboratory activities) is essential to effective TB prevention and control, and they are mutually reinforcing. Thus, they constitute a "package" of core activities. These are the highest priority TB prevention and control activities and should be carried out by all State and local TB prevention and control programs.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

93.117 PREVENTIVE MEDICINE AND PUBLIC HEALTH RESIDENCY TRAINING PROGRAM, INTEGRATIVE MEDICINE PROGRAM, AND NATIONAL COORDINATING CENTER FOR INTEGRATIVE MEDICINE

Preventive Medicine and Public Health Residency Training Program (PMR); Preventive Medicine Residency with Integrative Health Care Training Program ; Integrative Medicine Program (IMP); National coordinating center for Integrative Medicine (NccIM); Center for Integrative Medicine in Primary Care (CIMPC)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title VII, Sec. 765, 42 U.S.C. 295 and Sec 768, 42 U.S.C. 295c, as amended by the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Pub. L 111-148).

OBJECTIVES:

Grants are intended to promote postgraduate medical education in the specialty of preventive medicine and to enhance preventive medicine education through incorporation of evidence-based integrative medicine curricula into such programs. A cooperative agreement established a national coordinating center for integrative medicine (NccIM) to provide technical assistance to Integrative Medicine program (IMP) grantees, collect data, and evaluate the program. A cooperative agreement established a Center for Integrative Medicine in Primary Care (CIMPC) to incorporate evidence-based Integrative Medicine (IM) curricula into existing primary care residency and other health professions training programs; provide faculty development to improve clinical teaching in IM; deliver continuing education to current primary care and other health professionals to increase competency in IM; and provide technical assistance to primary care residency programs and other accredited and licensed health professions education programs on the integration of IM into the established primary care curricula and training.

The Preventive Medicine Residency with Integrative Health Care Training Program combined the purposes of the preventive medicine residency and integrative medicine programs into one to build on the previous achievements of the integrative medicine grantees. The broad goal of the program is to improve the health of communities by increasing the number and quality of preventive medicine physicians who can address public health needs, advance preventive medicine practices, increase access to integrative health care, and increase the integration of these two fields into preventive medicine training and practice.

Preventive Medicine is the specialty of medical practice which focuses on the health of individuals and defined populations in order to protect, promote, and maintain health and well-being and prevent disease, disability and premature death. It is one of the 145 medical sub-specialties recognized by the American Board of Medical Specialties. Preventive Medicine encompasses three areas of specialization: (1) General Preventive Medicine and Public Health, (2) Occupational Medicine, and (3) Aerospace Medicine. As articulated by the Institute of Medicine, integrative medicine can be described as orienting the health care process to create a seamless engagement by patients and caregivers of the full range of physical, psychological, social, preventive, and therapeutic factors known to be effective and necessary for the achievement of optimal health throughout the life span.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Awards are intended to assist in meeting the costs of planning and developing new preventive medicine programs; maintaining or improving existing residency training programs in preventive medicine; incorporating competency-based integrative medicine curricula in graduate medical education including preventive medicine residency and primary care programs; and providing financial assistance to medical residents enrolled in such programs. The NccIM cooperative agreement is intended to assist in providing technical assistance to IMP grantees related to faculty development, trainee support, and planning, developing, and operating training programs; collecting data and evaluating the IMP training program; providing support for the coordination and evaluation of faculty development programs established by the IMP grantees; and disseminating best practices and lessons learned through establishing a national coordinating center for integrative medicine. The CIMPC cooperative agreement is expected to contribute to the evidence-base for IM, and identify and disseminate promising practices related to the integration of IM into primary care and interprofessional practice, including the activities listed under Objectives above. The Preventive Medicine Residency with Integrative Health Care requires recipients to increase the number of preventive medicine residents and/or improve training for these residents. The applicants are required to 1) propose a plan for evaluating any improvements in the educational program, such as the effect of the interventions on the knowledge, skills, and practices of the residents; 2) incorporate evidence-based integrative health care curricula into accredited preventive medicine residency programs; AND 3) provide interprofessional training of their preventive medicine residents including training in preventive medicine and integrative health care for other primary care or community-based health care trainees or providers in addition to preventive medicine residents.

Indirect costs under training awards to organizations other than State, local or American Indian tribal governments will be budgeted and reimbursed at 8 percent of modified total direct costs rather than on the basis of a negotiated rate agreement, and are not subject to upward or downward adjustment. Integrative medicine grants may not be used to support trainee costs. Grants may not be used for construction or for the provision of direct patient services.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible applicants are: (1) an accredited school of public health or school of medicine or osteopathic medicine; (2) an accredited public or private nonprofit hospital; (3) a State, local, or tribal health department; or (4) a consortium of 2 or more entities described in (1) through (3).

Eligible applicants for the NccIM are (1) a health professions school, including an accredited school or program of public health, health administration, preventive medicine, or dental public health or a school providing health management programs; (2) an academic health center; (3) a State or local government; or (4) any other appropriate public or private nonprofit entity that has the capacity to provide national technical assistance for IMP grantees and to the broader audience of preventive medicine and primary care residency programs. The applicant must demonstrate expertise in the field of evidence-based complementary and alternative medicine (CAM) treatment modalities for health professions disciplines or be an Integrative Medicine Center.

Eligible applicants for the CIMPC are (1) a health professions school, including an accredited school or program of public health, health administration, preventive medicine, or dental public health or a school providing health management programs; (2) an academic health center; (3) a State or local government; (4) any other appropriate public or private nonprofit entity; or (5) a consortium of eligible entities.

Dental and Craniofacial Research.

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Section 301.

OBJECTIVES:

To improve oral, dental and craniofacial health through research, research training, and the dissemination of health information. The research portfolio supports basic, clinical and translational research from basic biology to patient-oriented and community-based clinical investigations. The Developmental Biology and Genetics Program supports research on etiology, pathogenesis, epidemiology, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of inherited craniofacial-oral-dental diseases and disorders (e.g., ectodermal dysplasia, cleft lip and palate, amelogenesis imperfecta, dentinogenesis imperfecta, osteogenesis imperfecta, and other inherited diseases that have craniofacial-oral-dental manifestations) as well as on normal craniofacial-oral-dental development, and genome-wide association studies. 2. The Translational Genetics and Genomics program supports genetic/genomic research using epidemiologic and family-based methods, gene discovery using high throughput technologies, and gene-environment interactions. 3. The Microbiology Program supports basic and translational research on the role of oral microbes in health and disease including the etiology, pathogenesis, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of oral infectious diseases. Areas of interest include biofilms and microbial ecology, microbial genomics and metagenomics, microbial virulence and disease pathogenesis, prevention and treatment. 4. The AIDS and Immunosuppression Program supports basic, translational and clinical research on HIV infection and AIDS to advance understanding of the underlying molecular, cellular, and genetic mechanisms that enable or prevent HIV infection and development of oral complications associated with AIDS and AIDS malignancies. 5. The Immunology and Immunotherapy Program supports basic and translational research on the immune aspects of oral diseases such as caries and periodontal diseases, including host responses to microbes, immunology of biofilms, oral inflammation, systemic diseases, immunotherapy, immunopathologies, and host susceptibility to infection. 6. The Epithelial Cell Regulation and Transformation Program supports basic and translational research on the molecular mechanisms of oral epithelial cell regulation as they relate to the development and progression of diseases of the oral mucosa, including head and neck cancer. The program also supports and encourages the application of genomic, proteomic, and imaging technologies through research on the early diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of head and neck cancers. 7. The Mineralized Tissue and Salivary Gland Physiology Program supports basic and translational research on craniofacial skeletal biology and pathobiology including the physiology of tooth, bone and cartilage, and associated disorders and diseases, saliva and salivary glands, and pharmacogenetics. The goal of the program is to promote interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approaches to advance the understanding of normal and abnormal processes underlying oral, dental and craniofacial diseases and disorders. 8. The Molecular and Cellular Neuroscience Program supports basic and translational research on orofacial pain and neuropathies, temporomandibular joint and muscle disorders, development of biomarkers for diagnostics and prognostics and development of therapeutics. 9. The Tissue Engineering and Dental and Craniofacial Regenerative Medicine Program supports basic and translational research on the reconstruction, remodeling and repair of the oral and craniofacial tissues damaged as a result of disease or injury. The goal is to promote interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approaches to engineering of biocompatible oral and craniofacial tissue constructs and their functional integration into the host tissue microenvironment. The program also supports efforts that employ bioengineering approaches for restoration, remodeling and regeneration of diseased and injured native host tissues. 10. The Dental and Biomaterials Program supports basic and translational extramural research on dental materials and devices, dental implants, biocompatibility of dental restorative materials, and biomaterials for craniofacial reconstruction. 11. The Behavioral and Social Sciences Research Program supports basic and applied research to promote oral health, to prevent oral diseases and related disabilities, and to improve management of craniofacial conditions, disorders and injury. 12. The Center for Clinical Research supports clinical trials, dental practice based research networks, epidemiology research, and health disparities research. The Research Training and Career Development Program insures the future of dental and craniofacial research by developing an outstanding and diverse scientific work force through training and fellowship programs designed primarily for graduate, and post-doctoral stages of education, including dual degree (DDS, PhD) programs, as well as for continued career development of scientists and retraining of mid-career scientists. Diversity fellowships serve to expand the diversity of the scientific work force by supporting the training of predoctoral students from underrepresented groups. The Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program seeks to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program seeks to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation and foster technology transfer through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements; Project Grants; Project Grants (Contracts); Project Grants (Fellowships); Project Grants (Special)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants: Research Grants and cooperative agreements provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation in the oral and craniofacial health sciences. They are awarded to universities, colleges, medical and dental schools, hospitals, and other nonprofit and for-profit institutions. Awards include investigator-initiated project grants, exploratory and developmental grants, small grants, center grants, conference grants, and career development awards. Individual and institutional dual degree (DDS or DMD/PhD) awards provide support for research career development in both clinical and basic science. National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) provide support for research training in specified biomedical areas, and can be made to institutions to enable them to accept individuals for research training. Individuals who receive NRSAs may be obligated upon termination of the award to comply with service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (duration of approximately 6 months) provide support to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants support the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I to further develop the commercial products or process initiated in Phase I. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (duration of typically 1 year) support cooperative efforts between small businesses and research institutes to determine the scientific and technical merit, and commercial feasibility of a product or process with potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on the results of the research initiated in Phase I and the scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Grants: Scientists at universities, medical and dental schools, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit and for-profit institutions. NRSA and career development awards: (1) Nonprofit domestic organizations may apply for institutional awards. Fiscal Year 2014: The Regents of the University of Michigan in collaboration with the American Society of Transplant Surgeons continue to operate the Program through the National Living Donor Assistance Center (NLDAC). Through the end of February 2015, the NLDAC has received 5,311 applications for reimbursement and has facilitated 2,730 living donor transplants. The median household income for recipients whose transplant was facilitated by NLDAC is $26,168. The average reimbursement to donors and companions is $2,209. The NLDAC, since its inception, has paid out $9.18 million to applicants including actual donors.

Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Organ Donation Grant Program: Since launching this program in FY 1999, HRSA/DoT has supported 108 research projects totaling $87 million to test strategies for increasing organ and tissue donation or to replicate successful donation interventions. A broad spectrum of interventions to increase donation has been implemented at the national, State, and local levels by a variety of public and private organizations, ranging from large-scale national media and public education programs and statewide donor registries to community-based activities to raise awareness among various population groups. These projects have contributed to the knowledge base about important factors associated with the donation decision-making process and methods for motivating people to make the commitment to become deceased organ donors and educating the public about living donation.

Public Education Efforts to Increase Organ Donation: Since FY 2007, 24 projects totaling $13.8 million have been supported under this grant program. Grantees have implemented projects to increase organ donation registration and knowledge about living donation. These projects also have contributed to the knowledge base about important factors associated with the donation decision-making process and methods for motivating people to make the commitment to become deceased organ donors and educating the public about living donation. EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2014: Reimbursement of Travel and Subsistence Expenses toward Living Organ Donation Program (FY 2014 through FY 2018): HRSA awards a cooperative agreement to the Regents of the University of Michigan to continue the operations of the National Living Donor Assistance Center to provide reimbursement of travel and subsistence expenses to living organ donors who meet the program eligibility guidelines. Transplant centers screen prospective donors for program eligibility requirements and submit applications and supporting documents to the program on behalf of their prospective donors.

Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Solid Organ Donation grants: In FY 2013 seven Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Solid Organ

Donation grants were awarded. Two of the grants test new training on communication strategies to improve registration rates and family discussion among teens. One grant project seeks to increase registration among college students using digital media and competition. Two other projects seek to increase donor registration via existing non-donation programs, one through the voter registration process and another through a larger health education program. Finally, two others focused on increasing registration among specific minority groups, one with Hispanics and another with African Americans.

Public Education Efforts to Increase Solid Organ Donation program: In FY 2014 three grants were funded under the Public Education Efforts to Increase Solid Organ Donation program. The aim of one project is to replicate a campaign to increase registration among 16-18 year olds via direct mail; another project is conducting a multi-phased driver facility campaign to increase registration; and a third is using psychographic data to create tailored public. (Project Grants) FY 14 $10,565,413; FY 15 est $10,716,420; and FY 16 est $12,016,420 - IMPACII is the official grant-making system for the agency and is the source of data used to support Grants Funding Profiles (Notice of Grant Awards). This data is balanced against the financial grants module in UFMS. While we did balance to IMPAC II the issue stems from the use of the grant closing transaction code (059) that was manually processed in the financial system (UFMS), but not processed in IMPACII the grants data source. IMPAC II does not use the close-out module of the system and we did not include the 059 grant closeout transactions in the award amounts for the FY 2014 State Funding Profiles. Instead the amounts appeared at full value. Typically, grant closing entries do not occur using current year funds.

Grantees have been notified of the adjustment and the transactions are closed in the Payment Management System (PMS). This ensures no grantee financial adjustments are necessary. But due to the manual transactions made, the amounts reported to TAGGS were overstated for FY 2014.

This issue appears to have only impacted NCIPC and only CAN 939ZSFL for rape prevention awards under UFMS document number series VCE0022* in BFY 2014. The adjustment reduced total obligations by $1,786,105.52 for NCIPC.

93.155 RURAL HEALTH RESEARCH CENTERS

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 123 of P.L. 110-275, the Medicare Improvements for Patients and Providers Act of 2008 (MIPPA); Section 711 (b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 912(b)) as amended by section 432 of the Medicare Prescription Drug Improvement and Modernization Act of 2003.

Social Security Act, Title VII, 711 (42 U.S.C. 912), as amended.

OBJECTIVES:

The Rural Policy Analysis Program supports research and analysis of key policy issues affecting rural communities to inform rural policy makers. Funded projects focus on the changing rural environment and (1) facilitate public dialogue on key rural policy issues by tracking emerging rural health and human services policy issues; (2) identify opportunities for integrating health and human services in rural policy, program, and evaluation in a local community context; (3) identify opportunities to demonstrate broad community impact of policies and programs in rural health and human services, consistent with policy goals related to rural revitalization and sustainability of rural regions; and (4) provide analysis of policies and regulations in the form of policy briefs, reports, and oral presentations.

The purpose of the Rural Health Value Program (formally called the Rural Health Systems Analysis and Technical Assistance Program) is to inform rural health care providers, and stakeholders (such as HHS, Congress, states, and for-profit and nonprofit entities that set policies impacting rural health care providers) about the impacts of changes in the health care delivery system, and to provide technical assistance to rural providers in identifying new approaches to health care delivery in their communities.

The Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program Evaluation Cooperative Agreement and Information Services to Rural Hospital Flexibility Program Grantees provide technical assistance, support, monitoring and evaluation to the State Rural Hospital Flexibility Program grantees and Critical Access Hospitals.

The purpose of the National Rural Health Policy and Community Development Program is to develop and maintain projects that will help support rural communities through a broad range of programmatic and policy activities, including: identifying national policy issues and promising practices for rural health care providers; identifying and translating key points from emerging policy issues to rural health care providers, researchers and policymakers; providing a forum for rural medical educators and students to share lessons learned to address recruitment and retention challenges, and expanding public awareness of the importance of the economic impact of the health care sector.

The State Rural Health Coordination and Development Cooperative Agreement (SRHCD-CA) enhances the rural health infrastructure in each State by providing guidance and technical assistance to State Offices of Rural Health (SORHs) as well as their partners and to identify and promote best practices. The goals of the SRHCD-CA are 1) to assist in the coordination of health care delivery through the development of State level rural health leadership; and 2) to facilitate partnerships and collaboration at the national and State levels to improve the exchange of information and engage in collaborative activities for supporting rural health.

The Rural Quality Improvement Technical Assistance Cooperative Agreement provides technical assistance to Federal Office of Rural Health Policy (FORHP) grantees, Critical Access Hospitals (CAHs), and other rural providers, to assist them in demonstrating improved quality improvement results. Assistance will be provided in the areas of: data collection and analysis, understanding measure specifications, benchmarking and target-setting, developing and implementing efficient and effective improvement strategies, and tracking the outcomes of quality improvement efforts.

The Frontier Community Health Integration Program (FCHIP) Technical Assistance, Tracking, and Analysis program provides technical assistance, site implementation assistance, and other tracking and analytic activities to support providers participating in the FCHIP Demonstration in identifying potential new approaches to health care delivery, reimbursement, and coordination in sparsely populated areas.

The Rural Health Research Center and Telehealth Focused Rural Health Research Center programs are designed to increase the amount of publically available, high quality, impartial, policy-relevant research to assist decision makers at the federal, state and local levels to better understand the challenges faced by rural communities and providers. The research conducted by these research centers provides information that will improve access to health care and population health.

The Rapid Response Rural Data Analysis and Issue Specific Rural Research Studies grantee assists rural communities with conducting rapid data analyses and short term research studies to understand the impact of current and proposed policies and regulations as well as to provide information that will improve access to health care and population health in rural America. Due to the nature of rural policy analysis and formulation, rural organizations and health care providers often require timely information that is available only through specialized analysis of databases of information compiled by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid (CMS), and other Federal and State agencies or provide organizations. Most rural groups and individuals do not have the capacity to store the data sets, the staff expertise to refine and analyze the data, nor the technology necessary to run statistical analyses. Findings from these analyses are used to help inform rural health care providers and stakeholders that set policies impacting rural communities.

The Rural Health Research Dissemination Program grantee disseminates and markets policy-oriented information for use by diverse audiences, such as rural stakeholders at national, state, and community levels and policy decision-makers, to inform and raise awareness of issues regarding policy implications, access, quality and status of health care delivery, services, and management on behalf of rural communities. The information includes the body of research funded by the Federal Office of Rural Health Policy and is designed to help decision-makers and policy analysts concerned with a variety of rural health issues at national, state, and community levels better understand the problems rural communities face in assuring access to health care and promoting good health for their members.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Procedures for assessing the technical merit of grant applications have been instituted to provide an objective review of applications and to assist the applicant in understanding the standards against which each application will be judged. Critical indicators have been developed for each review criterion to assist the applicant in presenting pertinent information related to that criterion and to provide the reviewer with a standard for evaluation. Competing applications are reviewed by non-Federal expert consultant(s) for technical merit recommendations.

For new and competing continuation grants the following criteria will be used to evaluate State applications to determine which States are to be supported under this notice: (a) The extent of the State's need for health professionals consistent with the health professions and specialties identified later in this notice; (b) the number and type of providers the State proposes to support through this program; (c) the appropriateness of the proposed placements of State LRP recipients (e.g., consistency and coordination with State-based plans to improve access to primary health services for the underserved communities and individuals); (d) the appropriateness of the qualifications, the administrative, and managerial ability of the staff to implement the proposed project; (e) the suitability of the State's approach and the degree to which the plan of a State is coordinated with Federal, State, and other programs for meeting the State's health professional needs and resources, including mechanisms for ongoing evaluation of the program's activities; (f) the source and plans for the use of the nonfederal match (the degree to which the nonfederal match exceeds the minimum requirements or has increased over time and the amount of the match relative to the needs and resources of the State); (g) for competing continuation applicants only, the grantee's progress in achieving stated goals and objectives for the previous year's grant; this includes a progress report on the impact the State LRP placements have had on the State's short-term and long-term professional needs; (h) an assessment of the reasons for initial breaches by health professionals of repayment contracts; and (i) the grantee's history of compliance with reporting requirements. Noncompeting continuation applications will be evaluated on the grantee's progress in achieving stated goals and objectives for the previous year's grant; this includes a progress report on the impact the State LRP placements have had on the State's short-term and long-term professional needs; (j) and assessment of the reasons for initial breaches by health professionals of repayment contracts; and (k) the grantee's history of compliance with reporting requirements.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The research project grant is awarded to an eligible institution in the name of a principal investigator for a discrete project or group of related projects representing the investigator's interest and competence. Funds may be used for salaries and wages, equipment, supplies, travel and other costs required to carry out the research project. National Research Service Awards are made directly to individuals for research training in disciplines supporting the research areas. In addition, grants may be made to institutions to enable them to select individuals for National Research Service Awards. Each individual who receives a National Research Service Award is responsible for certain service and payback provisions. Responsibilities of grantees and restrictions on use of funds are set forth in the Public Health Service policy statement on grants for research projects, which is available on request from the Division of Extramural Outreach and Information Resources, Office of Extramural Research, National Institutes of Health (NIH), 6701 Rockledge Drive, Room 6207, MSC 7910, Bethesda, MD 20892-7910. Telephone: (301) 435-0714. Fax (301) 480- 0525. E-mail: asknih.od.nih.gov. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR)

Program: SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6 months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Projects: Awards can be made to any public or private, for-profit or nonprofit university, college, hospital, laboratory, or other institution, including State and local units of government, qualifying small businesses (through the Small Business Innovation Research/STTR Programs, and to individuals. To be eligible for funding, an application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review committee and by a national advisory council. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its territories. To be eligible for funding, an SBIR grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. Non-federal public and private domestic organizations may apply for an Institutional National Research Service Award. Individual National Research Service awardees must be nominated and sponsored by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Predoctoral awardees must have completed the baccalaureate degree, and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., E.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company, or institution engaged in biomedical research can apply for research support.

Credentials/Documentation:

Each applicant for a research project must present a research plan and furnish evidence that scientific competence, facilities, equipment, and supplies are appropriate to carry out the plan. Applications must submit an electronic grant application form SF424 which can be accessed from the funding opportunity announcement. For applicants for National Research Service Awards, the academic record, research experience, citizenship, institutional sponsorship, and the proposed area and plan of training must be included in the application. The applicant institution must show the objectives, methodology, and resources for the research training program, the qualifications and experience of directing staff, the criteria to be used in selecting individuals for the award, and a detailed budget and justification for the grant funds requested. For-profit organizations, costs are determined in accordance with 48 CFR. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulation 45 CFR 75. For SB IR and STTR grants, applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SF424 applications are used for SBIR and STTR programs. In order to be eligible for a NRSA award, the individual must be a US citizen or permanent resident of the US. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards. Application forms and information concerning the area of science being supported may be obtained via a funding opportunity announcement. The standard application forms, as furnished in the Funding Opportunity Announcements at www.grants.gov, must be used for this program. This program is subject to the provisions of 45 CFR 75. The SBIR and STTR Solicitations and SBIR Contract Solicitation may be obtained electronically through the NIH "Small business Funding Opportunities" homepage at www.nih.gov/grants/funding/sbir.htm on the World Wide Web. The Solicitations include submission procedures, review considerations, and grant application or contract proposal forms. Completed SBIR and STTR grant applications are submitted electronically to grants.gov.

Award Procedure:

All accepted applications for project grants and institutional National Research Service Awards must respond to a funding opportunity announcement, must be reviewed for scientific merit by an appropriate initial review group and by the National Advisory Council for Human Genome Research (NACHGR). (Individual NRSA applications are not reviewed by council.) All approved applications compete for available funds on the basis of scientific merit and program emphasis, the exception being if the application is in response to a Request for Applications, in which case a specific amount of funds is set aside, but awards are based primarily on the quality of the applications. Awards are issued throughout the year. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a impact score ranging from the best (10) to worst (90) compete for the available funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit (which includes the potential of the proposed research for commercial application), program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research. However, in reality, applications with impact scores of 40 or greater are rarely considered for funding.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2014: The 1000 Genomes Project. The international 1000 Genomes Project discovered almost all common human genetic variants and many rare variants, to support studies relating genetic variation to health and disease. The project sequenced the genomes of 2,504 people from 26 populations around the world and released the data publicly. The sequence data allowed the project to identify variants including single DNA base differences among people, insertions or deletions in their genomes, and larger structural variants. Many of these variants contribute to an increased risk for particular diseases, or to differences in drug response. Researchers use these data to help find the genes and variants affecting risk of diseases and drug responses, and to study the demographics of human populations. Fiscal Year 2015: Genotype-Tissue Expression (GTEx) Project. The aim of the Genotype-Tissue Expression (GTEx) Project is to increase our understanding of how changes in our genes contribute to common human diseases, in order to improve health care for future generations. Launched as a two-year pilot project supported by the National Institutes of Health (NIH), GTEx will create a resource that researchers can use to study how inherited changes in genes lead to common diseases and will establish a database and a tissue bank that can be used by many researchers around the world for future studies. GTEx researchers are studying genes in different tissues obtained from many different people. In addition, the GTEx project includes an Ethical, Legal, and Social Implications (ELSI) study to explore the effectiveness of the GTEx donor consent process. This study will help ensure that the consent process and other aspects of the project effectively address the concerns and expectations of participants in the study. GTEx is a pioneering project that uses state-of-the-art protocols for obtaining and storing a large range of organs and tissues and for testing them in the lab. Until now, no project has analyzed genetic variation and expression in as many tissues in such a large population as planned for GTEx. After a successful pilot study, GTEx is being scaled up to a final resource of ~900 donors total by 2015. Fiscal Year 2016: Encyclopedia of DNA Elements (ENCODE). After completing the full sequence of the human genome, scientists faced the challenge of understanding what that sequence means and how it contributes to health and disease. One approach NHGRI has taken to address this question is to support the Encyclopedia of DNA Elements (ENCODE) Project, which aims to identify the parts of the human genome sequence that are functional, that is, sequences that are thought to play a critical role in biological processes as measured by having some biochemical activity. Research laboratories participating in the ENCODE Project use a variety of methods to catalog the functional elements of the human genome. The resulting list of functional elements, which includes genes and regions that control the expression of genes, is presented as a resource that is freely available on the internet. This resource gives scientists a new set of tools to use while investigating biological phenomena and human disease.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2014: Centers of Excellence in Genomic Science (CEGS) Since the publication of the Human Genome Project (HGP) and the advancement of DNA sequencing technologies, scientists have access to a vast amount of genomic data. The next step is analyzing that data for biomedical information. The Centers of Excellence in Genomic Science (CEGS) program supports interdisciplinary teams to develop critical advances in genomic research that address important biomedical research issues. The approaches and concepts used to address these issues will improve the ability of the broader biomedical community to produce, analyze and use genomic data. Overall, the CEGS are meant to precipitate novel projects that have the potential to change the way in which genomics is performed and utilized in biomedicine. Fiscal Year 2015: Genomics of Gene Regulation (GGR). The goal of the Genomics of Gene Regulation (GGR) project is to develop better methods to construct predictive, accurate gene regulatory networks using genomic data. (Gene regulatory networks are computer models that predict the activity of genes by building a mathematical relationship between genes, the regulatory elements that control those genes, and the signals to which the regulatory elements respond.)

GGR projects are designed to advance genomic science towards the long-term goal of NHGRI research in this area, which is to be able to predict, just by reading DNA sequence, when and at what level a gene is expressed, in a given cell type. Understanding gene regulatory networks could facilitate interpreting the role of genetic variation in human disease, particularly for regions of the genome that don't contain instructions for making proteins. This is a highly significant problem, as the vast majority of disease-associated variants found using GWAS lie outside of protein-coding sequences. The ability to make accurate predictions from gene regulatory networks could support genomic medicine and precision medicine, by providing us with one more tool to understand the consequences of genetic variation. Fiscal Year 2016: Centers for Common Disease Genomics. The National Human Genome Research Institute (NHGRI) seeks to fund a collaborative large-scale genome sequencing effort to comprehensively identify rare risk and protective variants contributing to multiple common disease phenotypes. This initiative will explore a range of diseases with the ultimate goal of undertaking variant discovery for enough different examples of disease architectures and study designs to better understand the general principles of genomic architecture underlying common, complex inherited diseases; understand how best to design rare variant studies for common disease; and develop resources, informatics tools, and innovative approaches and technologies for multiple disease research communities and the wider biomedical research community. NHGRI plans to make 2-5 awards in FY16.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Project Grants and Centers Grants may be used to provide salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses for research. The grantee institution is obliged to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes as stated in the application and award document. Some National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are issued on behalf of an individual for research training in specified biomedical and behavioral research areas. Other training grants are made to institutions to enable them to make NRSAs to individuals selected by them. Each postdoctoral individual who receives an NRSA may be obligated, upon termination of the award, to comply with certain service and payback provisions. Mentored and unmentored career development awards are made to enhance the independent research capability of highly promising individuals during the formative stages of their careers. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Program: Phase I grants, typically 6 months in duration, are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. SBIR Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research efforts initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grant, normally of 1-year duration, are to determine the scientific, technical, and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort. Phase II funding is based on scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the application. Grant funds may be expended only for the purpose stated in the application and award document.

Applicant Eligibility:

Project Grants and Centers Grants: Any public, private, nonprofit, or for-profit institution is eligible to apply. For-profit institutions are not eligible for institutional National Research Service Awards. All proposals are reviewed for scientific merit, for evaluation of the qualifications of the investigators, for adequacy of the research and/or research training environment and for significance of the problem. Approved proposals compete for available funds. Awardees of almost all Research Career Development Programs must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Candidates must be nominated for the program by a nonfederal public or private nonprofit institution located in the United States, its possessions or Territories. Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the United States or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, an SBIR grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. Title VIII, Section 821 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 296m), as amended by Section 5404 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (P.L. 111-148).

OBJECTIVES:

To support projects that assist underrepresented students throughout the educational pipeline to become registered nurses, facilitate diploma or associate degree registered nurses becoming baccalaureate-prepared registered nurses, and prepare practicing registered nurses for advanced nursing education. The NWD program increases nursing education opportunities for individuals who are from disadvantaged backgrounds (including racial and ethnic minorities under-represented among registered nurses) by providing (1) student scholarships or stipends for diploma or associate degree nurses to enter a bridge or degree completion program, and (2) student scholarships or stipends for accelerated nursing degree programs, pre-entry preparation, advanced education preparation, and retention activities.

Achieving a diverse, culturally-aligned, and competent workforce that is reflective of the population served will require development of new workforce strategies. New workforce strategies must extend beyond individual-level interventions to address social and structural forces that impede efforts towards workforce diversity and health equity. The support is intended to increase capacity and action in health promotion, health care access and emergency preparedness activities for people with disabilities.

Research project grants: Financial assistance under this program is being used to: 1) Implement and evaluate programs to identify and quantify preventable secondary conditions within disability domains which include physical, medical, cognitive, emotional, and/or psychosocial conditions and their prevention; 2) determine the risk and protective factors in specified populations of persons who have a disability; 3) measure the effectiveness and costs of preventive interventions; and 4) develop measurements of the environment that can facilitate or hinder access to participation for persons with a disability. National Limb Loss Information Center: Financial assistance has been awarded to operate a national clearinghouse to provide educational materials and self-help guidance to persons with limb loss and limb difference their families, and develop a peer visitation training initiative for the conduct of education and training sessions in hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, and support groups. The National Center on Physical Activity and Disability provides multiple sources of information and references on a vast array of inquiries on exercise, fitness and health promotion activities. In these cases, project funds may not be used to supplant State, local, or institutional funds available for these activities, or for construction costs, or to purchase facilities or space. 93.197 CHILDHOOD LEAD POISONING PREVENTION PROJECTS STATE AND LOCAL CHILDHOOD LEAD POISONING PREVENTION AND SURVEILLANCE OF BLOOD LEAD LEVELS IN CHILDREN

(Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program (CLPPP))

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Executive Order Section 317 (k)(2) and 3171 of the Public Health Service Act, 42 U.S.C. Sections 247b and 247b-10, as amended, Title 42, Part 247b, Section 247b-10.

OBJECTIVES:

To (1) Develop and/or enhance a surveillance system that monitors all blood lead levels; (2) assure that children who are potentially exposed to lead receive follow up care; (3) assure awareness and action among the general public and affected professionals in relation to preventing childhood lead poisoning in high risk areas in collaboration with other government and community based organizations.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Awards are to be used by State and local government agencies to develop, improve, and expand their capacity to address the problem of childhood lead poisoning in communities with demonstrated high-risk populations. Recipients of awards are expected to: (a) write, implement and evaluate a jurisdiction-wide childhood lead poisoning elimination plan; (b) write, implement and evaluate screening plans to target resources to children at the highest risk for lead poisoning; (c) maintain a jurisdiction-wide childhood lead surveillance program, with an analysis plan for collected data, (d) conduct primary prevention activities for pregnant women and/or families with children at high risk for lead poisoning, (e) develop an assurance plan for timely and appropriate case management of children with elevated blood lead levels, (f) demonstrate strategic partnering with community organizations and with other state/local agencies involved in environmental and child health activities, (g) coordinate with organizations and agencies involved in lead-based paint hazard reduction activities and development of protective policy; and (h) evaluate programmatic impact on childhood lead poisoning within the applicant's jurisdiction. Awards cannot supplant existing funding for childhood lead poisoning prevention programs or activities. Grant awards may not be expended for medical care and treatment, or for environmental remediation of lead sources, however, there must be an acceptable plan to ensure that these program activities are appropriately carried out. The surveillance component of this grant is intended to assist State health departments in implementing or enhancing a complete surveillance system to track all PbB levels in children. This is essential for grant recipients to target interventions to high-risk populations and to track progress toward eliminating childhood lead poisoning.

Applicant Eligibility:

Assistance will be provided to State health departments or their bonafide agents and the health departments of the following five local jurisdictions (or their bonafide agents) that have the highest estimated number of children with elevated blood lead levels : New York, NY; Chicago, IL; Detroit, MI; Los Angeles County, CA, and Philadelphia, PA, or their bona fide agents. Also eligible are health departments or other official organizational authorities of the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Republic of Palau, and federally recognized Indian tribal governments. Competition is limited by authorizing legislation.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

In addition to the eligible applicants, others who receive benefits from the program include infants and children from six months to six years of age who are screened for lead poisoning and family members who care for lead-poisoned children. Lead poisoning potentially affects all children, but disproportionately affects minority children and children of low-income families. Since the effects of lead poisoning can be long lasting, benefits of the program can also affect youth and adults, persons at all educational and income levels, and urban, suburban, and rural populations.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicants should document the need for assistance, state the objectives of the project, present their approach to meeting the objectives, and outline the methods of operation. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards. Application forms are both available from and submitted to the Grants Management Branch, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2920 Brandywine Road, Room 3000, Atlanta, GA 30341. Standard application forms, as furnished by CDC and required by 45 CFR 92 must be used for this program. This program is subject to the provisions set forth in 45 CFR 92 for State and local governments.

Award Procedure:

Approved grants are funded based on a priority score ranking from an objective review process coordinated by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. CDC will give funding preference to state programs with significant estimated numbers of children with elevated blood lead levels that direct federal funds to localities with high concentrations of children at risk for childhood lead poisoning. CDC will also give funding preference to the five local jurisdictions with the highest estimated number of children with elevated blood lead levels. Awards are made based on availability of funds and other significant factors as deemed necessary and appropriate by the agency. Funds are awarded for a one-year (12 month period). A Notice of Grant Award (Form PHS 5161-1) is provided which indicates the current award as well as support recommendations for the remainder of the project period (up to three years). (OTSG Compacts)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Indian Health Service, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA), 25 U.S.C 458aaa; Tribal Self-Governance Amendments of 2000, 42 U.S.C 137.1-450.

OBJECTIVES:

To allow Federally recognized Indian Tribes to enter into an agreement with the Indian Health Service (IHS) to assume full funding and control over programs, services, functions and activities (PSFA) (or portions thereof) that the IHS would otherwise provide for Indians because of their status as Indians. Such assumptions shall be through compact and funding agreement or construction project agreement under Title V of the ISDEAA.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments for Specified Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds must be spent in accordance with the ISDEAA, applicable regulations and terms of the negotiated compact, funding agreement, or construction project agreement. Per 42 C.F.R. 137.167-168, a Tribe participating in the IHS Self-Governance Program (Self-Governance Tribe) must apply the cost principles of the applicable OMB Circular, except as modified by: (a) 25 U.S.C. 450j-1, (b) other provisions of law, or (c) any exemptions to applicable, subsequent OMB circulars. No other audit or accounting standards shall be required by the Secretary. Per 25 U.S.C 458aaa-7(h) and 42 C.F.R. 137.100, a Self-Governance Tribe may retain and spend interest earned on any funds paid under a compact or funding agreement. Per 42 C.F.R. 137.101, a Self-Governance Tribe must invest and manage the funds as a prudent investor would, in light of the purpose, terms, distribution requirements, and provisions in the compact or funding agreement and ISDEAA Title V. This duty requires the exercise of reasonable care, skill, and caution, and is to be applied to investments not in isolation, but in the context of the investment portfolio and as a part of an overall investment strategy that should incorporate risk and return objectives reasonably suitable to the Self-Governance Tribe. In making and implementing investment decisions, the Self-Governance Tribe must diversify the investments, unless it is imprudent under the circumstances. In addition, the Self-Governance Tribe must: (a) conform to fundamental fiduciary duties of loyalty and impartiality; (b) act with prudence in deciding whether and how to delegate authority and in the selection and supervision of agents; and (c) incur only costs that are reasonable in amount and appropriate to the investment responsibilities of the Self-Governance Tribe.

Applicant Eligibility:

Per 42 C.F.R. 137.18, to be eligible to participate in the IHS Tribal Self-Governance Program (Program), any Federally recognized Indian tribe must: (a) successfully complete the planning phase described in 42 C.F.R. 137.20; (b) request participation in the Program by resolution or other official action by the governing body of each Indian tribe to be served; and (c) demonstrate financial stability and financial management capability for three Per 42 C.F.R. 137.26, an Indian tribe does not need to receive a planning or negotiation cooperative agreement to be eligible to participate in the IHS Tribal Self-Governance Program. An Indian tribe may use other resources to meet the planning requirement and to negotiate. Emergency Department consultation services via telehealth to rural and community providers without emergency care specialists.

The Rural Child Poverty Telehealth Network Grant Program (RCP-TNGP) demonstrates how telehealth networks can improve access to quality health care and social services for children living in high poverty rural and underserved areas.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) - Funds support the use of telehealth networks (electronic information and telecommunications technologies to support and promote long-distance health care and ancillary services) for improving access to health care services; provide a baseline of information for a systematic evaluation of telehealth systems; purchase or lease and install equipment; and to operate and evaluate the telehealth system.

Overall, not more than 40 percent of grant funds may be expended for equipment. Not more than 15 percent of grant funds may be expended for indirect costs. Grant funds may not be used for purchasing and installing telecommunications transmission equipment (e.g., microwave towers, satellite dishes, amplifiers, digital switching equipment or laying cable or telephone lines) or to acquire real property. Construction costs are allowable only for minor renovations related to the installation of equipment.

Applicants must provide an evaluation design to measure quantitative outcomes, which should be measured in the following areas: impact on quality of care; appropriateness of use of the technology; whether access was improved; whether clinical outcomes were improved; and, how the cost of service delivery was affected in terms of efficiency and effectiveness of care. Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRC) - Funds support the establishment and development of Resource Centers, which serve as a focus for the provision of telehealth technical assistance across the country. Funds support both Regional Telehealth Resource Centers and two national Telehealth Resource Centers. One National TRC will focus on providing specialized technical assistance in telehealth technology. The other National TRC will focus on policy issues such as state and national policies and initiatives regarding telehealth. Grant funds are used for salaries, equipment, operating, travel expenses, or other costs for: providing technical assistance, training and support; disseminating information and research findings related to telehealth services; promoting effective collaboration among telehealth resource centers and HRSA; promoting the integration of the technologies used in clinical information systems with other telehealth technologies; fostering the use of telehealth technologies to effectively provide healthcare information and education for health care providers and consumers; and, implementing special projects that involve collaboration among TRCs to advance the field of telehealth. Grant funds are not used for: acquiring real property; equipment costs of more than 40 percent of total grant funds; for equipment or transmission costs not directly related to the grant purposes; to purchase or install general purpose voice telephone systems; construction costs; and indirect costs exceeding 15 percent of total grant funds.

The Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) - Grant funds are used for salaries, equipment, software development, operating, or other costs associated with developing legislative, administrative, and technical projects to address licensure barriers that hinder the practice of telemedicine across state lines. Grant funds may also be used for activities involving significant expansion of existing state agreements for cross-state recognition of professional licenses to other states.

Evidence-Based Tele-Emergency Network Grant Program (EB TNGP) The primary purpose of the EB TNGP is to support a range of Tele-Emergency care programs that will allow for the analysis of a significant volume of patient encounters to allow for detailed study and analysis of patient outcomes in rural areas. The goal is for each EB TNGP awardee to analyze the provision of Tele-Emergency services under common metrics and protocols that will allow for a multi-site analysis of the effectiveness of those services. Each awardee will participate in a broad-scale analysis and evaluation of the program coordinated by the Federal Office of Rural Health Policy (FORHP) as well as individual grantee analysis and evaluation. It is expected that each of the awardees and the FORHP will publish findings in peer-reviewed academic journals under common metrics. . . Grant funds may be used for salaries, equipment, and operating or other costs, including the cost of: 1) Developing and delivering clinical Tele-Emergency services, including telestroke, that enhance access to health care services for residents in rural areas that lack specialized emergency services. 2) Developing and acquiring, through lease or purchase, computer hardware and software, audio and video equipment, computer network equipment, interactive equipment, data terminal equipment, and other equipment that furthers the objectives of the Tele-Emergency network grant program; 3) Transmitting medical data, and maintenance of equipment; 4) Compensating emergency clinicians who provide consultative services via telehealth to the rural telehealth sites; and 5) Collecting and analyzing statistics and data to document the cost-effectiveness of Tele-Emergency and to participate in the broader evaluation and analysis for this program, The Rural Child Poverty Telehealth Network Grant Program (RCP-TNGP) is a three-year pilot program to support established telehealth networks to develop innovative ways to address the unique health care and social service challenges faced by rural children living in high poverty areas. The TRC-TNGP awardees include a broad range of health and human service applications to link children from high poverty rural areas with the services they need that are not available locally. Grant funds may be used for salaries, equipment, and operating or other costs, including the cost of: 1. Developing and delivering clinical and social services via telehealth to improve the health and well-being of children living in high poverty rural areas; 2. Developing and acquiring, through lease or purchase, computer hardware and software, audio and video equipment, computer network equipment, interactive equipment, data terminal equipment, and other equipment that furthers the objectives of the telehealth network grant program; 3. Transmitting medical data, and maintenance of equipment; 4. Compensating clinicians (including travel expenses), referring health care providers, and social service providers who are providing services to children living in high poverty rural areas through the project, if no third party payment is available; and 5. Developing projects that use telehealth technology to facilitate collaboration between health care and social service providers.

93.213 RESEARCH AND TRAINING IN COMPLEMENTARY AND INTEGRATIVE HEALTH

National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 485D, Title VI, Section 601, Public Law 105-277, 112 Stat. 2681-387, 42 U.S.C 281, as amended by Making appropriations for Departments of Labor, Health, and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2015 and for other purposes., Title II, Section 224, Public Law 113-235, 128 Stat. 2490, 42 U.S.C section 287.

OBJECTIVES:

To evaluate complementary health approaches. The following objectives support this goal: (1) coordinate and facilitate the investigation of complementary health approaches through peer-reviewed grant solicitations; (2) interface with the Center's National Advisory Council; (3) conduct technology assessment conferences for the purpose of establishing areas of Clinical and Pre-clinical research that need to be further developed within complementary health approaches; and (4) maintain a comprehensive bibliographic data base in conjunction with the National Library of Medicine.

The National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health (NCCIH) regularly examines and redefines its research priorities. In setting research priorities, NCCIH considers its existing research portfolio, its 5-year strategic plan, the recommendations of the National Advisory Council for Complementary and Integrative Health, current scientific advances, the plans of other NIH institutes and centers, and input from expert panels and stakeholders. Research constituting a rigorous evidence base for complementary health approaches will be developed through a range of research strategies including basic and translational research, and clinical investigation.

Current research priorities are shaped by the following considerations regarding Research Approaches, Areas of Special Interest, and Areas of Lower Program

Priority.

Research Approaches

Basic, translational, efficacy and effectiveness research
Complementary health approaches need to be studied across the continuum of basic, translational, efficacy, and effectiveness research. NCCIH continues to emphasize basic research that defines biological effects and mechanisms of action; clarifies scientific hypotheses; supports development of translational tools to understand biological effects and mechanisms of action. NCCIH continues to encourage efficacy studies to determine specific clinical effects of complementary health approaches under carefully controlled conditions that minimize nonspecific and contextual effects. There is also the need to strengthen translational and preliminary clinical research required to design and implement definitive clinical research and "real world" outcomes and effectiveness research that capitalizes on the reality that many complementary health approaches are in widespread public use.

NCCIH's support of translational research addresses the need for valid, reliable and relevant research tools, outcome measures, and innovative methodology to enhance the rigor of complementary health approaches within clinical studies and to ensure that they are maximally informative. NCCIH emphasizes studies that inform the design of future trials such as those that will: develop and validate outcome measures; standardize treatment protocols or algorithms; validate treatment algorithms and/or; develop measures of quality control or treatment fidelity; assess effects of various doses or intervention durations; develop preliminary clinical evidence regarding efficacy and safety to support estimates of sample size; or establish feasibility of interventions or study designs in specific populations for future studies.

NCCIH's clinical research portfolio utilizes clinical trial, case-control, observational, cohort, qualitative, and other experimental methodologies to determine safety and estimate the efficacy of complementary health approaches. The clinical research portfolio includes effectiveness studies of the contribution to improved health and wellness made by complementary health approaches as they are practiced in "real-world" settings.

In general phase III clinical trials will be supported under the cooperative agreement mechanism after careful consideration by NCCIH Staff.

Investigators interested in proposing phase III studies are strongly encouraged to contact a relevant NCCIH Program Officer (<https://nccih.nih.gov/tools/emailprogramofficers>)

Areas of Special Interest

Although a wide range of research topics are of interest to NCCIH, studies focusing on complementary health approaches used frequently by the American public (including the context(s) in which these interventions are used), and that are amenable to rigorous scientific inquiry are particularly encouraged. These areas include, but are not limited to, investigations of the effects of complementary health approaches on chronic pain syndromes and inflammatory processes, and in disease prevention and improving health and wellness. Among all types of studies, attention to a range of endpoints meaningful to improved health, well-being, and quality of life, as well as a biological signature that provides mechanistic information, is strongly encouraged.

In addition to their use to promote health and wellness, complementary health approaches are most often used to manage symptoms that may be idiopathic or associated with underlying diseases and conditions, including back pain, neck pain, arthritis, and other musculoskeletal pain. Research to understand more clearly whether and how such interventions add value to existing approaches and to identify the biological and/or behavioral mechanisms by which they exert beneficial effects will advance the science and practice of symptom management.

Newly emerging evidence suggests that complementary health approaches may be associated with greater degrees of positive health behaviors. While causal relationships between complementary health approaches and healthy behavior have not been established, the claims and preliminary data deserve investigation given the formidable public health challenges in motivating behavior change. Research is needed to explore, clarify, and examine the hypothesis that certain complementary health approaches, in fact, are useful in encouraging better self-care, an improved personal sense of well-being, and a greater commitment to a healthy lifestyle.

Areas of Scientific Promise

The expanding evidence base includes a large body of intriguing albeit preliminary evidence that points towards specific opportunities to improve health care and health promotion using complementary health approaches that have been divided into two groups- mind and body and natural products. Mind and Body interventions, practices and disciplines are based in mental or physical procedures or techniques administered or taught to others by a trained practitioner or teacher. Natural products include a large and diverse group of orally or topically administered substances such as herbal medicines, botanicals, dietary supplements and probiotics.

Examples of important clinical research opportunities and needs in the mind and body portfolio include but are not limited to the development of better, comprehensive strategies for management of chronic back pain and defining the roles of acupuncture, spinal manipulation, and massage in those strategies; exploration of the role of specific promising complementary health approaches or disciplines (e.g., meditation, yoga, or acupuncture) in developing better strategies for alleviating symptoms (e.g., chronic pain, stress) or in promoting healthier lifestyles; exploration of the association between well-characterized pathways of pain processing and acupuncture analgesia or the placebo response; exploration of the associations of major pathways of cognitive processing and emotional regulation by meditative practices; and studying the influence of the provider-patient/client interaction, context effects, and the placebo response on outcomes of complementary health approaches

Examples of important clinical research opportunities and needs in the natural products area include but are not limited to studying the molecular targets and biological effects of potentially beneficial small molecules that are constituents of natural products or diet; defining the anti-inflammatory actions of omega-3 fatty acids and other natural products; employing state-of-the-art tools and technologies to study the effects of probiotics on the human microbiome; and developing evidence regarding the safety profile of certain widely used natural products, including interactions with drugs and other herbals or dietary supplements.

Early Stage and New Investigators

NCCIH is strongly committed to assisting new and early stage investigators in establishing a research career. Early stage investigators are those within 10 years of completing their terminal research degree, or their medical residency, or its equivalent. New investigators are those who have yet to compete successfully for a substantial (e.g., R01) NIH research grant. Each Advisory Council round, based on available funds, NCCIH: 1) will consider early stage or new investigator status as one of the criteria for designating grant applications as being of high program priority and 2) may make additional R01 grant awards to new and early stage investigators with percentiles or scores out of payline order..

NCCIH continues to accept applications in areas not listed listed as a specific priority area via the investigator initiated funding opportunities. All investigators are urged to discuss potential applications with the relevant NCCIH Program Officer (<https://nccih.nih.gov/tools/emailprogramofficers>).

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS; TRAINING

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation relevant to program objectives. Individual National Research Service Awards (NRSA) are made to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, grants may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSA to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Universities, colleges, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit domestic institutions, including State and local units of government, and individuals are eligible to make application for grant support of research by a named principal investigator or a research career development candidate. For-profit organizations are also eligible, with the exception of NRSA. Individual NRSA awardees must be nominated and sponsored by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All NRSA awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. To be eligible, predoctoral candidates must have completed the baccalaureate degree, and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., ND, DC, D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is being proposed and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which researches proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company, or institution engaged in biomedical research.

Credentials/Documentation:

Each applicant for research projects must present a research plan and furnish evidence that scientific competence, facilities, equipment, and supplies are appropriate to carry out the plan. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. Individual NRSA applications for postdoctoral training must include the candidate's academic record, research experience, citizenship, institutional sponsorship, and the proposed area and plan of training. Institutional Training grant applications for predoctoral and postdoctoral training must show the objectives, methodology and resources for the research training program; the qualifications and experience of directing staff; the criteria to be used in selecting individuals for stipend support; and a detailed budget and justification for the amount of grant funds requested. For-profit organizations' costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. Grant form PHS 398 is used to apply for SBIR and STTR Phase I Phase II and Phase I/Phase II Fast Track. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. Award Procedure:

Award Procedure: All accepted applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score ranging from the best (10) to worst (90) compete for available funds based on scientific merit, program relevance, and program balance and are made annually. Initial award provides funds for the first budget period (usually 12 months) and Notice of Grant Award (Form PHS 1533) indicates support recommended for remainder of project period, allocation of Federal funds by budget categories, and special conditions, if any. . All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Overall from 120 to 300 days. Research Grants and Cooperative Agreements: Approximately 6-10 months; National Service Research Awards: 6-9 months; SBIR/STTR awards 6-7 months.

Renewals:

Research grants: renewals by competitive application and review. Extension by request and administrative action. National Research Service Awards: individual awards may be made for 1, 2, or 3 years. No individual may receive NIH fellowship support at the postdoctoral level for more than 3 years.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula.

Matching requirements are not applicable to this program.

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Project Grants: Awards are usually made for a 12-month period with recommendation of up to 4 years of additional support. SBIR: Normally, Phase I awards are for 6 months; normally, Phase II awards are for 2 years. STTR: Normally, Phase I awards are for 1 year; normally, Phase II awards are for 2 years. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: The Notice of Award (NoA) is the legal document issued to notify the grantee that an award has been made and that funds may be requested from the designated HHS payment system or office. An NoA is issued for the initial budget period. If subsequent budget periods are also approved, the NoA will include a reference to those budgetary commitments. Funding for subsequent budget periods are generally provided in annual increments following the annual assessment of progress. This funding is also contingent on the availability of funds. The NoA includes all applicable terms of award either by reference or specific statements. It provides contact information for the assigned program officer and grants management specialist. The grantee accepts an NIH award and its associated terms and conditions by drawing or requesting funds from the Payment Management System, or upon the endorsement of a check from the US Treasury for foreign awardees. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: lump sum.

Reports:

Final progress reports must be submitted within 90 days after the expiration of the award. The progress reported in a competitive renewal application may be accepted in lieu of a final progress report. The final progress report should include (at a minimum): summary of progress toward the achievement of the originally stated aims; list of results (positive or negative) considered significant; list of publications resulting from the project as well as plans for further publications' and copies of manuscripts that have been accepted for publication, but not yet published. No cash reports are required. Project Grants: Expenditures and other financial records, including documents supporting accounting records and substantive charges to each grant, must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period. The Federal Financial Report (FFR) is due 120 days after the final day of the project period. NRSAs: Documentation of expenditures and other fiscal records must be kept readily available for examination by authorized Government personnel and must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period. Reports are required after termination of NRSAs to ascertain compliance with service and payback provisions. Expenditure reports on a quarterly basis are sent to the data warehouse. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. For specific audit requirements, please see 45 CFR 75.

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual financial status reports (FSR) is submitted. For awards under the Streamlined Non-competing Award Process (SNAP) (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 75 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 75 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 CFR 75 the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of OMB Circular No. A-133, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of OMB Circular No. A-133. In accordance with NIH grants policy, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations.

93.233 NATIONAL CENTER ON SLEEP DISORDERS RESEARCH
FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

NIH Reauthorization Act of 1993, Public Health Service Act, Section 503: Subpart 2, Part C, Title IV, Section 424, 42 U.S.C. 285b et seq.

OBJECTIVES:

The National Center on Sleep Disorders Research (NCSDR) supports research and research training related to sleep disordered breathing, and the fundamental functions of sleep and circadian rhythms. The center also stewards several forums that facilitate the coordination of sleep research across NIH, other federal agencies and outside organizations, including the Sleep Disorders Research Advisory Board and a Trans-NIH Sleep Research Coordinating Committee. The center also participates in the translation of new sleep research findings for dissemination to health care professionals and the public. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support stipends, research expenses, supplies, travel, and research training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual Predoctoral and Postdoctoral National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. Institutional NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 1-year duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. Direct-to-Phase II SBIR awards are intended to enable a small business that has already performed proof-of-concept or feasibility studies to initiate the Phase II SBIR stage of development, without requiring a Phase I award. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), no SBIR/STTR funds are allowed for commercialization activities such as patents; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any nonprofit organization engaged in biomedical research and institutions or companies organized for profit may apply for almost any kind of grant. Only domestic, non-profit, private or public institutions may apply for NRSA Institutional Research Training Grants. An individual may apply for an NRSA or, in some cases, for a research grant if adequate facilities to perform the research are available. SBIR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, or owned by another small business that itself is independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees including affiliates). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. SBIR projects must be performed at least 67% by the applicant small business in Phase I and at least 50% of the Project in Phase II. STTR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees) that formally collaborate with a university or other non-profit research institution in cooperative research and development. The principal investigator of an STTR award may be employed with either the small business concern or collaborating non-profit research institution as long as s/he has a formal appointment with or commitment to the applicant small business concern. At least 40% of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30% by the non-profit research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company or institution engaged in biomedical research.

Credentials/Documentation:

Individual NRSA awardees and Institutional NRSA trainees must be citizens or noncitizen nationals of the United States, or have been admitted for permanent residency. Two levels of training are available: graduate level predoctoral training and postdoctoral training. All potential trainees must possess a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. Costs will be determined in accordance with OMB Circular No. A-87 for State and local governments. For-profit organization costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with DHHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present a research plan that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. Electronic submission of NIH Research Performance

Progress Reports (RPPR) apply for non-competing continuations (e.g., second year of Phase II). OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

If support is contemplated, staff initiates preparation of awards for grants. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The major elements in evaluating proposals include assessments of: (1) Significance: Does this study address an important problem? If the aims of the application are achieved, how will scientific knowledge or clinical practice be advanced? What will be the effect of these studies on the concepts, methods, technologies, treatments, services, or preventative interventions that drive this field? (2) Approach: Are the conceptual or clinical framework, design, methods, and analyses adequately developed, well integrated, well reasoned, and appropriate to the aims of the project? Does the applicant acknowledge potential problem areas and consider alternative tactics? (3) Innovation: Is the project original and innovative? Does the project develop or employ novel concepts, approaches, methodologies, tools, or technologies for this area? (4) Investigators: Are the investigators appropriately trained and well suited to carry out this work? Is the work proposed appropriate to the experience level of the principal investigator and other researchers? Does the investigative team bring complementary and integrated expertise to the project (if applicable)? (5) Environment: Does the scientific environment in which the work will be done contribute to the probability of success? Do the proposed studies benefit from unique features of the scientific environment, or subject populations, or employ useful collaborative arrangements? Is there evidence of institutional support? Complete review criteria can be found at <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-05-002.html>.
